GIRLS DEFY FLAMES

OPERATORS AT POSTS IN FIRE

CHICAGO, April 25—Nine girl telephone operators remained at their posts in the seven story American Express company's building here today when fire drove 1,000 other employes into the streets. The girls, led by Chief Operator Mary Dalton volunteered to keep the wires working with firemen standing at their sides, ready to carry them out if they should be overcome.

Fifteen girls who fainted were carried out of the building by firemen. The loss was about $10,000

BATTLING SIKI ON REAL BENDER

PARIS, April 25—Battling Siki, prima donna of the French prize ring, got loose again last night with the usual results—fight, police, jail, released.

The black man from Africa was awaiting a train for Lyons where he was scheduled to appear in an exhibition bout. He sat down to think in a waiting room and suddenly, without any sound of warning, decided to desert the team and went running wodn the street.

His sparring partner, whose meal ticket largely depended on whether Siki attended that exhibition set out after him.

Hubert, the sparring partner, overtook him, and then ensued four rounds of conversation and one round of snappy fighting, which curbstone observers described thus:

Round one.

Hubert missed a right to the jaw, and Siki came right back with a swing that came within half a yard of Hubert's nose. Hubert, coolly missed a simultaneously right and left which knocked out two spectators. Thereupon Siki drew back and brushed down three spectators, and both fell exhausted into the arms of intruding police.

SEIZE CONVICT WHO ESCAPED

NEPERVILLE, Ill., April 25—Noble Dickinson one of the three convicts who escaped from Joliet penitentiary yesterday, is in custody here today.

Police Chief Fairbanks captured Dickinson who attempted to hide in a hay stack. Dickinson said he missed the auto which carried Horace, "Hy" Summons and George Spider away from the penitentiary, and had been fleeing on foot.

CANNOT AGREE WITH ALLIES

LAUSANNE, April 25.—The Turks and allies were unable to agree on any major question before the economic commission at the Lausanne peace conference today.

All questions finally were referred to a committee of experts who will attempt to work out some solution which will be in accord with the demands of both sides.

ALLEGED BANDIT ARRESTED

Herman Heinemeier in Jail at Grand Island. Said to Be Implicated With Frank Shank.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., April 25.—After being in comparative hiding for nearly a year, Herman Heinemeier of Havens, Neb., has been arrested by Sheriff Lorentzen as the last missing man in the shooting affair that attended the interrupted transportation of a truckload of beer from Columbus to North Platte last July. The arrest followed the taking into custody, a few days ago of Frank Shank charged in connection with that case, with shooting with intent to kill.

A similar charge is placed against Heinemeier. Shank was released from jail, when he furnished bond in the sum of $1,000. Heinemeier, residing near Columbus at the time of the attempted hijacketing of the booze runners, has since been on a farm rented from his brother, near Havens.

MAY PROHIBIT PARKING

Omaha Police Commissioner to Introduce Ordinance Banning Cars on Certain Streets.

OMAHA, April 25.—Police Commissioner Butler today announced he shortly will introduce an ordinance prohibiting parking of automobiles between the hours of 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. on downtown streets. Under the ordinance no parking will be allowed on Farnam and Douglas from Fourteenth to Eighteenth street and from Dodge to Howard on sixteenth street.

GIRL BOXERS MUST BEAT BOXING OFFICIALS BEFORE THEY CAN BATTLE IN RING

Ida Schnall (left) who has temporarily given up water sports to train for boxing match with Jeanne La Marre (right).

PITTSBURGH—Before Jeanne La Marre, Pittsburgh's woman boxer, can carry out her plans to battle Ida Schnall of Brooklyn on May 12, she'll first have to defeat the New York state boxing commission. Altho the two girls insist that they have as good a right to box as the men, it is expected that the commissioners will prevent such a match in New York City on the grounds that it would be "detrimental to boxing." Jeanne and Ida intend to fight somewhere, if they lose their bout with the New York authorities.

WED ON NO FUND CHECKS

Authorities at O'Neill Seek Paul Closson and Brother.

O'NEILL, Neb., April 25.—County Judge Malone of this city is seeking Paul Closson who paid the judge for a marriage license and marriage ceremony for his brother with a no fund check. The sheriff also is seeking the bridegroom for a no fund check issued some time previous to the wedding.

GERMAN M. E. CONFERENCE

To Be Held at Osceola First Part of May.

OSCEOLA, Neb., April 24.—The Lincoln district conference of the German Methodist church will be held at Osceola on May 1-2-3 following which the semi-centennial celebration of the organization of the Valley church, seven miles northwest of this city will be held on May 4, 5, and 6. At the district conference there will be meetings for the general public each evening. Rev. George C. Meyer is the speaker for Rev. Ervin Unverzagdt and Dr. Otto E. Kriege are among the speakers.

The church northwest of this city was organized by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Horst, Lewis Timm, Mr. and Mrs Philip Schmitt, Henry Heimberg and Conrad Buchholz. All of these people have died, but many of their children and close relatives are yet living here and are active in the church work. The present church building occupied by the organization for regular services was erected in 1865, being dedicated October 18 of that year. Delegates and visitors will be taken care of at the homes of the members of the Osceola and Valley churches duirng their week's stay here.

Elect Teachers at Osceola.

OSCEOLA, Neb., April 25.—The board of education elected teachers for the Osceola schools at their meeting last night, the following being the teachers chosen: Supt. C. E. Andrews, history and athletics. Chas. H. LeBar, Crete, english and physical culture; Bertha Scholz, latin; Esther Schericb, mathematics. Elsie Watt, Specner, domestic science: Hulda Yung, normal training; Esther Andrews, commercial; Helen Torgenson, Superior, Wis., music supervisor; Blanche Bailey, department superintendent; Beatrice Alverson, 6th. 7th and 8th grades; Arnold Serenius, 5th grade; Eva Wieseman, 4th grade; Anna Oberg, 3d grade; Bessie M West, 2d grade; Bertha Heinan, primary; Jean Brigham, Manual training, K. Wendell, Crete.

Plants an Immense Orchard.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., April 25—Under direction of expert horticulturists George W. Homeyer of this place has just finished putting out one of the finest commercial orchards in this part of the country. It consists of 3,000 apple trees, 2,000 grape vines and a large number of small fruit, together with hundreds of pear and peach trees. It is laid out upon scientific lines so that the trees line from any direction one wishes to look at it, with the smaller fruit between the rows of apple trees. The apple trees will be thirty-three feet apart and will consist of every variety adapted to this locality, with about 100 extra choice varieties grown by the best orchardists of the west.

Married at Osceola.

OSCEOLA—The marriage of Miss Arvena Porsoski and Joseph Koseba was solemnized at the St. Mary's Polish Catholic church on the valley at 9 a. m. today Rev. Father Faessler officiating. The ceremony was followed by an elaborate wedding dinner and in the evening a reception and dance was given at the home of the bride. They will reside on a farm in Polk county south of Duncan.

Block Estate Worth $125.000.

OMAHA, Neb., April 25—The petition of administration of the estate of Israel Gluck who died last week was filed yesterday by M. L. Sugarman, attornay. The estate was valued at $125,000 and consists of personal property.

The administrators are D. M. Newman, Max Sommer, and Edward Gluck. The heirs are Mrs. Newman, Mrs. Sommer and Mr. Gluck.

BROUGHT BACK FROM DEAD

Omaha Woman Pronounced Lifeless Revived by Injection of Adrenalin Chloride.

OMAHA, April 25—Ten drops of adrenalin chloride, administered by Dr. W. A. Gerrie brought Mrs. Rafaela Mercurio, fifty-eight, from the shadow of death back to life and health. Mrs. Mercurio was not quite dead when the adrenalin was administered but presence of life could only be detected with very delicate instruments, Dr. Gerri said.

Following an operation for the removal of a kidney Mrs. Mercurio contracted urinal asthma and grew steadily worse. She had been unconscious for twenty-four hours and her skin had turned purple when Dr. Gerri arrived. Two other physicians pronounced her dead.

Dr. Gerri injected the drug under the patients arm and her skin almost immediately returned to its normal color and she soon regained consciousness and started to talk.

The injection was made April 13. Today Mrs. Mercurio, altho still confined to her bed, enjoyed a dinner of macaroni, beans, ice cream, pie and coffee.

BRIEF STATE NEWS.

Beatrice—Attorney L. C. Crocker is the first Beatrice resident to take out papers for the examination for appointment as postmaster at Beatrice. The examination is May 22. Candidates so far mentioned are the present postmaster J. R. McCann, deputy postmaster J. W. Baumgardner, R. R. Kyd, C. L. Brewster and Mrs. Clark Perkins.

Table Rock—Word reached here of the death of C. L. Wemple, who passed away at the home of a son in Dillon, Mont., from a stroke of paralysis, which he suffered April 15, from which he never recovered consciousness. His age was seventy-nine, and he had been in feeble health for the past few years. He is survived by his widow and two sons, Arthur and Earl, residing in Dillon, Mont., and a daughter, Mrs. Cora Schurr, who resides in Table Rock. Mr. Temple was born in New York state later moving to Michigan and coming to Table Rock, Neb., in 1876, which has since been his home, except when making extended visits with his two sons at Dillon. The body will be brought here for burial Thursday.

Table Rock—A very severe electrical storm came up here at four o'clock which approached the nature of a cloud burst and the clouds presented a cyclonic appearance. The wind, rain and hail were very much in evidence for a time. Between two and three inches of water fell in a very brief period, bringing the total rainfall since Friday morning up to six inches. Clear Creek and Taylor Branch both were out of their banks and boats would have been quite convenient in many places in the valley of the Nemaha. One house in the lower town was partially unroofed by the wind.

Wymore—The boy scouts of Wymore are arranging to purchase a scout marker for the grave of Floyd Zimmerman, thirteen-year-old Wymore school boy, one of their members who died here of scarlet fever two months ago.

Wymore—Thomas A. Helmig, pioneer druggist of Wymore, was called to Evansville, Ind., Tuesday by the death of his mother Mrs. Caroline Helmig, eighty three years old. His father, who was eighty-four years old, died exactly one year ago Tuesday.

Osceola—District court will convene for the spring tearm, Judge G. F. Corcoran, presiding. A few matters in equity will be tried and the jury will not be called. Three naturalization applications will be disposed of. The most important equity matter is that of The First Trust company, of Aurora vs. P. J. Refshauge, adm., et. al.

Nebraska City—That the property of the old Wash Co. alfalfa mills that cost hundred of local investors in Otoe county thousands of dollars when it went broke and was sold at receiver's sale, will be reopened as a feed grinding mill, is indicated by action of four capitalists, who are now negotiating for purchase of the property.

Nebraska City—The new city park, that has just been established by cleaning off the old dump grounds, near the river at the foot of Central avenue, and which was the scene of tree planting on Arbor day, will be known as "Legion Park," the American Legion having agreed with the civics club that started the park, to take care of it in the future. A public dedication will be held in a short time.

Nebraska City—N. C. Abbott, superintendent of the school for the blind at this place, has been selected by the school board and students of the Dunbar high school as commencement orator for the graduating class of 1923, at that place, which will hold exercises on May 17. He will talk upon "The Source of Inspiration."

Wymore—A large motor and pump were required to pump the water out of the storm sewer ditches in Wymore's paving district Tuesday afternoon. The ditches were open, only a few of the tiling having been laid, and four feet of water filled them and overflowed Main street after the heavy rains of the past two days. Over five hundred little chickens were drowned in town one woman, Mrs. James Novotny, in the west part of Wymore, losing sixty-five out of ninety just hatched a few days before.

Nebraska City—Because of lack of interest in the meetings of the local branch of the Fraternal Aid Union lodge here, it has been impossible to get a quorum out for transaction of business for several meetings, and in order to save the charter of the lodge, which is threatened, the officers are adopting the plan of holding the meetings at the home of members, and making a social event of the business session. The first meeting of this kind will be held next month.

Campbell—Several telegraph poles along the Burlington railway were struck by lightning and splintered or burned up, near here in the storm of Tuesday.

Wymore—Mrs. Stella Ashenfelter, forty-three years old, one of the first children born in Wymore, daughter of Mrs. A. Jacobs, died at the home of her mother here Tuesday night of paralysis. She had been confined to her bed for practically the last seven months. She was a Wymore high school graduate of the class of 1898. The husband has been in a sanitarium at Sioux City for several years. The mother and three children of Wymore survive, besides three brothers, Luther and Clint of Denver, and Mark of Wymore. Mrs. Ashenfelter's father, Ambrose Jacobs, was the first butcher in Wymore. He died eight years ago.

Nebraska City—Unable to reach the island by row boat, because of the high water and swift current of the Missouri river, Sheriff Carl Ryder and his deputy, Howard McCallam, hired a motor boat and made a trip to the Bauer island in the middle of the river, just southeast of town, to serve some papers in regard to the suit for possession of the island. The island was originally a part of the main land and has been cut off by the changing channel of the stream. Some squatters are suing for the island, that consists of about 1,500 acres. Because of the current, the officers made two attempts before they could get a landing.

ARREST CITY OFFICIALS

Corpus Christi Men Indicted for Conspiracy to Defraud in Connection With Oil.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., April 25.—Six city officials, including Mayor P. G. Tovenskiold, were arrested here today on indictments charging conspiracy to defraud.

The indictments were returned in connection with investigation of the drilling of a gas well to supply the city with fuel.

Five county officials were arrested yesterday on warrants issued in connection with the sale of road bonds. Fred Emert, said to be a bond buyer of St. Louis, was also indicted in the same connection.

CITY FULL OF BLIND PIGS

Detroit Police Commissioner Declares There Are 3,000 Operating There.

DETROIT, April 25.—There are more than 3,000 "blind pigs" operating in this city, Frank H. Croul, police commissioner, estimated today.

Croul declared hundreds of Detroit working men are quitting jobs in factories to operate stills and saloons.

AMERICAN DIES OF BATTLE ON OCEAN

J. M. Yorke Succumbs to Wounds Received When Fishery Cruiser Fires on Schooner Alleged to Be Poaching.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 25.—J. M. Yorke, an American, is the first victim of the fishery battle which broke out yesterday on the west coast of Vancouver island.

Yorke, a member of the fishermen's union of Seattle, died today of wounds received when the fishery cruiser Malaspina fired on the schooner Siloam, alleged to have been discovered poaching.

Four other members of the crew of the Siloam escaped and have not been seen since the shooting yesterday. The fish boat was said to have foundered in deep water.

Obregon Appoints Two to Meet With U. S. Commissioners and Thresh Out Recognition.

MEXICO CITY, April 25.—The Mexican special commissioners who are to meet with two delegates of the United States and thresh out difficulties coincident to recognition of Mexico, have been appointed by President Obregon. They are Roman Ross, director of charity, who was a member of the Queretaro constitutional convention; and Fernandez Gonzales, Roa lawyer and director of national railroad lins.

ADD DOLLAR A DAY.

The house Wednesday adopted a recommendation of the committee on employes to add a dollar a day to salaries of all of the stenographers and clerks in the office of the chief clerk, from the beginning of the session. The house recently added a dollar a day to the pay of ten employes who work outside of that office, which brought their pay up to $5 a day. The committee said htat in view of the fact that at the beginning of the session it fixed on a dollar a day difference between the two classes of employes it was but fair that the clerks and stenographers be now increased. This carried by 53 to 15.

The standing committees reported out for the general file two bills. One is H. R. 344, which fixes the maximum levy for rural schools at 20 mills a year, and the other is H. R. 724, the governor's bill cutting down the fees for inspection of oil.

BURLINGTON TO HOLD EXAM.

WYMORE, April 25—The Burlington railway is now arranging to conduct its regular biennial examination of all employes of this division on the rules pertaining to the handling of trains by telegraphic orders. Each employe new and old is required to pass a satisfactory examination and keep abreast of the times as a matter of safety. Schools will be conducted at Superior Wednesday night, Table Rock Thursday and Wymore and Cornorcia later in the week, the station employes being gathered up and formed into classes. Chief Dispatcher C. E. Temple and Dispatcher C. D. Clements are designated to hold the schools.

May Lose His Eye Sight.

NEBRASKA CITY, April 25—Working on a barbed wire fence on his farm near Paul, when the fence broke, Henry Schmidt, a well known farmer of this district, was so seriously injured that he may lose the sight of his left eye, when the broken wire struck him in the face. In addition to cutting the eye ball and probably injuring the sight of his eye, the broken wire caused some bad cuts on his face. When brought to the office of a physician here, it was found that the eyeball was badly cut. The sharp end of the broken wire struck him directly in the eye.

Landslide on the Railroad.

BROWNVILLE, Neb., April 25.—A landslide, loosed by the rains of the past two days, came down on the Burlington tracks one mile north of here Tuesday and it was necessary for a large gang of men to shovel stones and mudd off for the regular passenger train to pass. The Missouri river is cutting again close to the track from the east. The railway has had trouble at the same place for several years, and thousands of dollars have been spent to keep the track open.

"Hurry home, Jimmy," said a kind old gentleman. "Hurry home, or you'll be late for dinner."

"No, I won't," said Jimmy, tapping his paper parcel. "They can't start without me; I've got the meat for dinner here."

TESTIFIES AGAINST PURNELL

FIRST ACCUSATIONS AGAINST "KING" BEN

WAS "VIRGIN OF SHILOH"

Helped Take Care of "Ruler's" Personal Affairs.

SHE WAS FORCED TO MARRY

Not Given Man of Her Choice, When She Selected One From List, After Being Ordered With Other Girls, to Wed.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., April 25.—Mrs. Helen Couch declared today at the Michigan inquisition into the House of David, that while she was among the virgins of Shiloh, ministering to the wants of "King" Benjamin, the head of the cult had attempted to attack her.

Judge Harry J Dingeman, conducting the investigation, obtained first admissions involving Purnell from Mrs Couch, a former member of the religious cult. While other witnesses had admitted indiscretions all had given Purnell a clean slate.

"I left the house af David two years ago," Mrs Couch stated

"Before that time I had been one of the virgins of Shiloh Duties of this group of girl residents of the building occupied by Purnell, are to take care of the personal affairs of the "King."

"On one occasion while I was working in the pantry, Purnell attempted to attack me."

Mrs. Couch also said she had been forced to marry by leaders of the colony, altho she was not allowed to wed the man of her choice

"In 1918 I was ordered, with another large group of girls to marry," the witness continued.

"I was given a list of men from which to select a husband.

"I decided upon Edward Bailey, but was told that I could not have him. I then married Dever Couch who is still my husband altho we have left the colony."

Mrs. Couch told the investigators of mysterious love rites which she said were a part of the ceremonies of the colony up to the time she left.

Other witnesses were questioned regarding the cemetery at the House of David. The exact nature of this testimony could not be learned, altho leaders of the cult claim immortality for its members.

PLAN A WAR ON I. W. W.'S

Labor Leaders to Confer at Oklahoma City on Elimination of Radicals From Wheat Fields.

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 25.—Plans for a war on I W. W's in western wheat fields will be mapped out here May 8 at a conference of labor leaders of states from Texas to Canada, called by Claude Connally, state labor commissioner

Connally expects the "wobbly" agitators to be a more serious problem than ever this year because of the farm labor shortage.

At the conference an attempt will be made to set a standard wage for harvest workers and arrange transportation for workers as the harvest progresses to the north.

Connally declared arrangements will be made to handle and feed the workers on the scale of a "mobile army" as they move northward.

BOTH HOUSES HEAR REPORT

INVESTIGATION OF CAPITOL MATTERS GAINS APPROVAL.

Chambers in Senate Opposes Adoption on Ground That Each Member Has His Own Individual Opinion in Matter.

The report of the three senators and three representatives who investigated the charges made by George E. Johnson, former state engineer and secretary and member of the capitol commission was read in both houses Wednesday morning The house heard it during the first hour, and at the conclusion of the reading it was adopted and the committee thanked for its labors.

In the senate the reading was not started till nearly 11 o'clock Senator Chambers of Omaha objected to the motion to adopt. He said it was merely a criticism by six members of the 133 in the legislature, and that while he did not want to criticise the committee he said each member had his own individual opinion.

Mr. Robbins wanted to know why the committee thought that the state ought to hire a deputy inspector to check up on the architect's clerk of the works Mr. Wiltse said it was in the law, and it ought to be obeyed Mr. Purcell said the committee was convinced from the evidence that the state ought to have this protection.

Senator Chambers was the only man to vote against the adoption of the report, and it went on file

The preliminary part of the report devotes attention to the provisions of the various laws, including that creating the commission It also called attention to the fact that Section 5258 requires that each and every building erected or repaired and for which an appropriation is made must be built or fixed up within the appropriation, pointing out that it carries a penalty of from $500 to $1,000 for each offense.

HACKNEY IS PRESIDENT

Former Vice President Who Has Been Engaged in Banking Business for Twenty-five Years to Succeed Dr. P. L Hall.

W W Hackney, jr., was elected president of the Central National bank at a meeting held Wednesday evening, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr P L Hall He was also made a director L. C. Chapin was elected vice president to the office of vice president, previously held by Mr Hackney Mr Chapin was already an active director of the bank E E Emmett continues as cashier and Floyd as assistant cashier

F. E Johnson, also vice president, will remain president of the board.

Mr. Hackney has been in the banking business for about twenty-five years. He was born at Brownville, Neb He graduated from the University of Nebraska in the class of 1897 and spent the following year in study at Eastman business college at Poughkeepsie, N Y He became an employe of the Columbia bank of Lincoln in the latter part of 1898 or early in 1899. Mr Hackney is treasurer of the Lincoln Rotary club.

The Columbia was sold to the First National bank in June, 1907 October 1 of the same year, the Central National was started by a number of stockholders of the former bank. Mr. Hackney became assistant cashier at the beginning of the organization and has remained with the bank ever since. The panic of 1907 came soon after the Central opened for business and before the bank had begun lending money, which left it on easy street when money was tight with other local banks

At that time he considered the matter for some time but finally declined on account of business enterprises to which he was giving much time

SENATE COMMITTEE FINDS ADMINISTRATION ABLE.

Altho Hampered by Lack of Funds It Ranks High Among the Big Universities of the Country.

The University of Nebraska is under an efficient administration and making good to the state, according to a report filed with the state senate Wednesday. It is growing rapidly and the cost of operation is only about one half the amount generally supposed, according to the report which is signed by a sub-committee of the senate finance ways and means committee comprising Senators H B. Banning, chairman, G B Hastings, John W. Robbins, J. C McGowan, C. J Warner, Charles E Allen and J.H. Reifenrath. The sub-committee report follows:

"The University of Nebraska is making good to the state. It is under the direction of an able board of regents and an efficient administration. The institution has many colleges, dr-

STADIUM TO OMAHA FIRM

PARSONS COMPANY GETS THE BIG CONTRACT.

Athletic Field Promised to Be in Condition for Football Season Next Fall, With Part of Concrete Work Finished

The contract for the University of Nebraska stadium was awarded Wednesday evening by the building committee to the Parsons Construction company of Omaha, the lowest bidder All the bids had deductions for portions of the work which can be temporarily postponed. The low bid for the entire construction but not including the grading, was $548,849, which is $100,000 more than has been subscribed. A decision is to be reached by Friday as to just what features will be omitted for the present to bring the amount within the funds available.

The contract calls for the use of the stadium during the footballseason next fall, regardless of the contractor's convenience in completing the work. Sections B, C, D and F on the west are to be completed within 120 calendar days after signing of the contract, as to concrete work. Thirty additional days are to be allowed for placing the railing and wooden seats, as the concrete must first be allowed to settle. For the similar sections on the opposite side, 140 days from the award are to be allowed, with an additional month for the railing and seats.

In addition to that of the Omaha firm, bids were received from the Olson Construction company, W. J. Assenmacher and B. J. Jobst building, all of Lincoln; and Jones Engineering and Construction company, F. P. Gould & Sons, and Vaughn Construction company, all of Omaha

The contract for grading, to be begun this week, was awarded to the Roberts Construction company of Lincoln. The Martin Day company also entered a bid. The grading bid specifies the cost by the yard, but will total approximately $45,000. The surplus dirt has been sold to the board of education to fill recently acquired playground space for the Hayward school, near Ninth and Z.

The total subscriptions to the stadium fund are $446,318.99, including $6,200 reported Tuesday. Of this amount $50,000 is tied up by an agreement with the seven trust companies who are to finance the plans by issuing bonds for a loan

MRS. COOLIDGE'S FATHER DIES

Andrew I. Goodhue Passes Away at Burlington, Vt.

BURLINGTON, Vt., April 25.—Andrew I Goodhue, father-in-law of Vice President Coolidge, died here today.

Goodhue, who retired from business several years ago, was a deacon in the Congregational church. In addition to his daughter he leaves a widow.

FINE AN ALLEGED BOOTLEGGER.

State Sheriff Carroll reported Wednesday morning that Ralph Graham, arrested in Nebraska City by local police officers and members of the state sheriff's force, has been tried in county court, convicted of illegal sale and possession of hooch, and fined $200 and costs. An item in the Nebraska City Daily Press, headed "Thanks, Mr. Carroll," congratulated the state sheriff on his recent cleanup in booze circles The newspaper editor predicted that, after all, Nebraska will be one state where bootleggers cannot thrive with impunity.

THE WEATHER.

For Lincoln and vicinity: Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday, probably some light showers; not much change in temperature.

For Nebraska: Unsettled weather with showers tonight and Thursday; not much change in temperature.

CAPITOL INVESTIGATORS MAKE A REPORT

Bertram G. Goodhue, architect for the Nebraska state capitol, is censured in the report filed Wednesday with both houses of the legislature by the joint committee that investigated the charges filed by George E. Johnson, former state engineer and secretary and member of the commission The report is signed by Senators Wiltse, Purcell and Kroh and Representatives McCain, Kemper and Kendall, and the conclusions are announced as having been unanimously reached

The capitol commission is warmly commended, but both it and the architect are warned that the people expect and demand that the building cost be kept within the appropriation as nearly as is humanly possible.

Briefly summarized the committee finds that the architect did not duly consider and protect the interests of the state in the printing of the plans and specifications by a New York printer, that he should have furnished duplicate plans and specifications as necessary to properly protect the interests of the state; that this would not have been done if the plumbing contract had been let as a unit, as he recommended, that the highpriced eastern consulting experts should be replaced with cheaper Nebraskans of equal ability; that the tiling specifications ought not to be closed so that only one firm can bid; that no justifiable excuse was offered for drawing the specifications for heating so that but one company could bid; that hardware plans were drawn so that bidding will not be as unlimited as desirable; that favoritism was shown in selecting a carver, and it is not satisfied with the explanation for the short bonding of stone.

The findings of the committee follow:

Your committee begs to report it's findings as follows.

1. In regard to the claim of the architect for $7,000 00 which was paid to him by the capitol commission for the printing of the plans and specifications of the building we find that the testimony disclosed that the plans and specifications consisted of twenty-six "Trades" or pamphlets The specifications for each "Trade" were contained in a separate pamphlet excepting in the case of pamphlet or "trade" No 27, which was a combination of the twenty-six "Trades." Fifty copies of each 'Trade' or pamphlet were published

The purpose of having the "Trades" or pamphlets printed separately was to enable the capitol commission to furnish plans and specifications to prospective bidders in order to secure competitive bids on the different items for which it desired to contract for the construction of the building.

Your committee finds that the architect without having previously consulted the capitol commission arranged to have this printing done in New York city and that he filed his claim with the commission for $7,000.00 for the printing of such specifications and that the same was duly allowed to Mr. Goodhue as part of his office expense.

We further find that the contract for the printing of the same could have been secured thru the state purchasing department of the state of Nebraska for a sum ranging from $2200.00 to $2850 00 and that the work could have been completed within a period of ten days or two weeks that Mr. Goodhue's excuse for having this work done in New York city was a desire to have the work quickly done and the necessity, as he claimed of rereading the proof Your committee is of the opinion that there was sufficient time to have had the printing done thru the state purchasing department of the state of Nebraska and that the charge for the printing of the same was from three to four thousand dollars more than it should have been We are forced by the evidence to conclude that the architect did not duly consider and protect the interests of the state in that matter.

2 In regard to the claim of the contractor for the stone furnished for the walls of the building, your committee finds,

That after your joint committee had been appointed and as it was about to proceed with its hearings, the capitol commission entered into an agreement with the contractor by virtue of which an adjustment was made of the differences between them and by virtue of which it was agreed that the contractor would reduce its claim for the stone furnished in the first section of the building in the sum of $14,666 66 and that a total reduction of approximately $44,000 00 was made in the cost price of the stone for the three sections of the building

The committee further finds that three grains of stone designated as "fine", "next fine", and "coarser" and also as "fine, medium", and "coarse" texture had been used in about equal quantities in the walls of the building and that these respective grains of stone were selling at approximately 45, 70 and 75 cents per cubic foot, that the capitol commission adjusted its differences on the prices of the stone on the basis of 61 2-3 cents per cubic foot, which was the average price of the three grains of stone used in the building.

Your committee further finds that the capitol commission arranged for the removal from the walls of the building, any stone of quest onable texture or quality and that it agreed that on the second and third sections of the capitol building that it should have the option under its contract with the Indiana Quarries company to use if it so desired "Coarse Buff" stone at 45 cents per cubic foot, "Standard" at 70 cents per cubic foot and "Select Buff" at 75 cents per cubic foot

As to the charge that Mr Goodhue personally promised to furnish duplicate plans and specifications and to revise all the bids covering both steel and reinforced concrete floor construction in the committee finds that the architect did not furnish these duplicate plans until after the matter was taken up with him by the capitol commission and that such duplicate plans and specifications were then furnished and that he received the duplicate plans and that he prepared the duplicate plans and specifications as a saving was made to the state on the first section of the building of approximately $20,000 0 Mr. Goodhue's explanation of his reason for not having the same made form when the duplicate plans and specifications as agreed was that he believed steel construction better than the reinforced concrete.

It is the opinion of the committee that the arch could have been made more pleasing to the eye and that the duplicate plans and specifications would have shown the same to be so and that the same were not prepared to permit the lowest

4. In regard to the claim of Mr. Goodhue for $446 for alleged services in connection with the plumbing for the state building your committee finds that the plumbing contract was let as a unit and that the lowest responsible bidder could not be secured for the plumbing contract for the entire building but that the plumbing contract was divided into two parts and that Mr. Goodhue was employed to prepare the plans and specifications for the plumbing contract for the entire building and that he was paid for the same and that the lowest responsible bidder could be secured for the plumbing contract for the entire building if the plans and specifications had been prepared in such a manner as to permit competitive bidding on the plumbing contract for the entire building and that the plans and specifications prepared by Mr. Goodhue were not

CLARA MAY FIGHT MOVE

HUSBAND OF HAMMER SLAYER TO OPPOSE EXTRADITION.

Will Send Attorney to Honduras for That Purpose—Sheriff Biscailus to Sail for Mrs. Phillips May 5.

SAN SALVADOR, April 25.—A woman giving the name of Mrs. R. M. Young, arrested in Teguciagalpa, Honduras, in the belief that she was Clara Phillips, escaped "hammer murderess," will fight extradition to the United States, it was learned here today.

The woman denies she is Mrs. Phillips and will oppose extradition on that ground, basing her claim also on a treaty between Honduras and the United States.

Mrs. Young and two companions, who said they were Mr. and Mrs. J. C Carson of New Orleans, entered Honduras thru the port of Amapala on the gulf of Fonzeca and went directly to Teguigalpa, ninety miles inland, according to their story. They registered at the Aguecia hotel.

Later they made arrangements to board with an American family in the city.

They were arrested on information from the United States in the belief they were the "tiger woman" who murdered Mrs. Alberta Meadows with a hammer, and two companions who aided her escape.

On being questioned by the authorities after their arrest Saturday, the trio would give little information about themselves. Mrs. Carson said she was a sister of Mrs. Young. They refused to be interviewed.

After a talk with the American minister at Teguciagalpa, Mrs. Young let it be known that she would resist extradition. The Carsons, it is understood, waived extradition.

Carson is being held at the Honduran capital on information from the United States on a charge of being a fugitive from justice. The authorities at Teguciagalpa believe he is wanted in California.

LOS ANGELES, April 25.—A legal battle to thwart the efforts of authorities to return Clara Phillips, hammer murderess, from Honduras, is in prospect.

Armour Phillips declared today he had made arrangements to engage an attorney who may be dispatched to the Central American republic to bring all possible pressure to bear against the return of his wife to this country—if it is she.

The state department will fight any private attempts to thwart the extradition proceedings.

Meanwhile Undersheriff Biscailus is nervous in the fear that the cool and resourceful jail breaker may escape from her hotel or from one of the comic opera "ginger bread jails" of Honduras. He has engaged passage on the earliest steamer, a Pacific mail liner, leaving May 5.

Unless Clara obtains a delay he will return with her early in June. She will be in handcuffs all the way up to prevent a new escape.

Officials here are extremely fearful that the trip south may, after all, turn out for naught. They read O'Henry and are of the opinion that some jailer may fall victim to her modern wiles and that they will arrive only to find her gone again.

CONGRATULATES MR. BREADY

Judge Bayard H. Paine Extends Best Wishes of State Association of District Judges.

Judge J. H. Bready, newly-appointed judge of the Lancaster county district court, has received this letter from Judge Bayard H. Paine of Grand Island, secretary of the Association of district judges of Nebraska:

"Dear Judge: I was trying jury work at Thedford all last week and on my return home I take the first opportunity to extend you the official congratulations of the association of district judges.

"I think it is a distinct gain to the whole association to have a man with your peculiar experience among our members. I am sure that you will enjoy the work more than anything else that you have ever done. If it is possible for three democrats to be re-elected out of four men in Lancaster county on the district bench, it surely proves that the non-political law is a most excellent one for picking out the right men for the place. I was at Columbus yesterday and you can have no idea of the great joy that Judge Post had in telling me about the part that he took in advancing your interests by this appointment. He seemed as happy over it as if you were his own son. Accept my heartiest congratulations."

RADIO IN GARDEN OF EDEN

Third Asiatic Expedition on Its Way Over Gobi Desert to Be in Touch With Arlington.

PEKIN, April 25.—Arlington radio station will tick off the time for the map makers in the Garden of Eden or in what many scientists believe is the original scene of the snake and apple episode.

The third Asiatic expedition is today on its way over the Gobi desert bound for western Mongolia where rare fossil finds have already been encouraging enough to lead the scientists to make a determined search for the birthplace of man.

Part of the expedition will go into the southern part of the Gobi, about 800 or 900 miles west and a little north of Pekin to search for fossilized fig leaves, snake's legs and any other thing that will increase knowledge of early animal and possibly human life.

This search is carrying an up-to-date radio receiving set, for use in map making. With the set are chronometers that must be occasionally corrected to the fraction of a second for a slight error in time would mean many yards, even miles. The resulting map for instance might show the apple and fig trees on a mountain peak where a snake could never crawl and the whole thing would be spoiled.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Chicagoans looking across Lake Michigan yesterday saw sandy shores of Michigan and buildings of St. Joseph for the first time in fifteen years.

The mirage was distinct for more than two hours.

Scientists said it was caused by the lake waters waking the air on the surface much colder than the upper air.

HARD WINDSTORM IN TEXAS

HENRIETTA, Tex., April 25.—Damage estimated at $200,000 was caused by a wind, rain and hail storm which swept the business district here last night.

Altho roofs were blown off some buildings, windows broken, cellars flooded and other damage done by the storm, no casualties were reported.

MORE ANNEKA JENS HEIRS

Mrs. Harry Jacobsen Says Her Brothers and Sisters Claimants—Three in Nebraska.

In a letter to The Journal, Mrs. Harry Jacobsen of Broken Bow, Neb., tells of seven more heirs to the Anneka Jens estate estimated at more than $600,000,000 and located in the heart of New York city. She says that three of the heirs of which she is one live in Nebraska. The other two are Mrs. Albert Jacobsen of Fairmont, and A. M. Yougeson of Pleasantdale.

Mrs. Jacobsen says that records of their genealogy show the marriage of Anneka Jens and Everardus Bozardus. Their branch of the family was the Kips.

According to her grandmother Mrs. Jacobsen says, Anneka Jens leased the property for ninety-nine years to the Trinity church corporation. When the lease expired, the heirs did not claim the estate at once so the trustees of Trinity church held it. Since then there has been much litigation and the church still holds the land. Mrs. Jacobsen thinks it doubtful if it will ever be settled.

MAY REGRET PRICE WAR

Standard Asked Why It Can Sell Gasoline at 16 1-2 Cents in Some Places.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 25.—The Standard Oil company was to explain here today why it could sell gasoline for 16 1-2 cents a gallon in Kansas City while other communities pay as high as 21 cents.

Attorney General Jesse W. Barrett, who has conducted an investigation of the price war in Kansas City on complaint of independent companies, announced that attorneys for the Standard Oil would confer with him here and explain their position.

WILL HOLD MASS MEETING

Municipal Ownership League Forces Will Meet at Clinton School House Thursday Evening.

The "municipal league ownership" forces will hold a mass meeting at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, April 26, in the Clinton community center building, Twenty-ninth and Dudley streets. Candidates favored by the league will discuss municipal problems. C. L. Rein and George A. Adams have been invited to speak. The meeting is at the call of Ed. Schroder, chairman of the league. Efforts are being made to secure the city auditorium for a mass meeting and rally of the league forces Saturday night. Mr. Schroder said that a real fight is being made to defeat the members of the "old guard" now holding jobs at the city hall.

A Siutable Selection.

Tarrytown Daily News—Mr. White more in making the closing speech made a strong appeal for more men to attend church on Sunday. This was followed by a soprano solo, "Idle Words," by Mrs. Nelson.—Boston Transcript.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer" Charming Rialto Audiences.

One of the most widely heralded of this season's photoplays is "Quincy Adams Sawyer," the feature attraction at the Rialto this week. It is a lavish production of the famous story of New England life. The delightful rural characters are funprovoking to the extreme, and the fresh, clean, humor will appeal to all lovers of better pictures. In the strong cast is seen Blanche Sweet, Lon Chaney, Barbara La Marr, John Bowers, Elmo Lincoln, Hank Mann, Louise Fazenda, June Elvidge, Zaau Pitts and others. Interesting short subjects and the added attraction, "The Rural Four," a vocal novelty, completes a program of real entertainment.

Cave girl, daughter of Eve, stripped of her jazz and her bold frivolity, what's the modern flapper like? Has she a head, and does she use it? Is she daring, unselfish resourceful? De Mille showed you one side of the modern girl in "Manslaughter." Here's the other the better side. The story of a millionaire's family, romance-seeking husband thrill-seeking daughter, and the fascinating "other man" who forced their restless lives to a dramatic crisis. Told in De Mille's most sumptuous style. With the greatest De Mille cast and the most amazing settings ever assembled. Fun from the press and a vocal offering by Thomas H. Blanchard and Dorothy Tillingson.

"Ebb Tide," a Red-Blooded Romance, at the Colonial.

Stevenson's thrilling story of the South seas produced with all its tingling adventure, its primitive passions, its colorful love scenes. Played by this great cast: Lila Lee, James Kirkwood, Raymond Hatton, George Fawcett, Noah Beery and Jacqueline Logan. EXCITED OVER HARDING TALK

WASHINGTON GIVEN SURPRISE BY NEW YORK SPEECH.

Lodge to Call at White House and Result Is Awaited With Interest to Tell If There Is to Be Party Split.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Political Washington was in a fever heat of excitement today over President Harding's New York speech tying to his 1924 candidacy and to his party's fortunes the wourld court issue.

Mr. Harding returned from New York early this morning. Senator Watson of Indiana also came back from New York and hunted up Senator Lodge to talk with him about the president's speech.

Lodge was expected to call at the white house. Republican politicians were waiting to hear what he would say after meeting Mr. Harding. For Lodge's statement of his position on the court issue, which he has premised to issue after he has discussed the matter with the president will give lesser republicans their cue and netify them whether there is a psilt in the party.

Mr. Harding returned calmly to face the opposition here. He knew it would come and was prepared for it. What he was more interested in, he told members of his party on the return journey, was the reaction of the country at large. It is too soon to appraise that reaction. But Mr. Harding indicated he would not be much disturbed by what Lodge, Watson, Brandagee or McCormick said until he learned whether the people at large sided with him or with his republican critics.

The president feels that his case and that of the Watson group is now before the people. The verdict probably will determine the president's course. If the country shows that it agrees with him, he will vigorously continue to urge that the United States become a party to the court. If the other side prevails with the public, he probably will yield gracefully by letting the court issue slip quietly into the background.

Watson, who went everywhere yesterday that Mr. Harding went, but who did not confer with the president—even walked past him at the ball game without speaking—said the whole discussion in republican ranks is good humored and will remain so.

Watson regarded Mr. Harding's speech as a fine broad gesture which permitted him to tell his side of the story, and predicted that from now on much less will be heard about the world court issue from the president.

ONE-CAR LINE PAYS HIM

Massachusetts Man Gets Extraordinary Service But Finds It Has Recompenses.

RANDOLPH, Mass., April 25.—One man—perhaps another Jim Hill in the making—now owns and operates the fivemile trolley line between here and Stoughton.

When the Eastern Massachusetts street railway discontinued service because it did not pay, Raymond French, twentytwo, then one of the company's carmen, leased the line, bought three shabby old cars and began operation of his now famous one-man traction system.

French not only meets all the trains, but the school children, as well. He sees that they get across the streets safely and does a little shopping for their mothers as part of his policy of "real service."

As president, board of directors, superintendent, starter, repairman, switchman and section hand French decided that to make his line pay he would have to inaugurate a freight and express service. Now he carries anything from a can of sardines to trunks and bags of flour. He shops for busy mothers and gets cigars for fathers who can't leave home at night, much to the satisfaction of all.

French's income is steadily increasing and altho he is not yet in the millionaire class, he is making a comfortable living.

His weekly revenue averages $150, he says. Of that amount about $40 a week goes for power, supplies by meter, and he pays two mechanics who help keep the cars running, $25 a week each.

SLAIN PRIEST

REV. HENRY O'NEILL.

VISIT GRAVE FOR EVIDENCE

FLORIDA LEGISLATORS LED TO TABERT'S RESTING PLACE.

Negro Who Says He Helped Bury Flogged Convict Declares Body Will Show Marks of Brutality.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 25.—State legislators visited the dead today in search of new evidence of atrocities in connection with Florida's peonage system.

Led by Arthur Johnson, a negro, who declared he aided in the simple burial, a joint committee of the state legislature went into the swampland near here in search of the grave of Martin Tabert, North Dakota youth, who died in a convict camp following a flogging.

The investigators have been told they will find the boy's body buried in a water soaked hole, encased in a cheap coffin, and still carrying marks of the alleged brutal beating.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Congress formally declared war to exist between the United States and Spain.

Soldiers comprising the Nebraska national guard began laying out camp.

Two Nebraska regiments were to gather in camp at the old fair grounds, the camp to be called Camp Alvin Saunders in honor of the war governor of Nebraska. Other military names mentioned in reports of the gathering of the regiments were Lieut. John M. Stotsenburg, Capt. A. E. Campbell, Capt. M. Herpolsheimer, General Bills and Adjutant General Barry.

The Nebraska Friends, or Quakers, were holding a meeting in Lincoln.

POSTPONE SCRIP BOOKS' SALE

Interstate Commerce Commission Defers to Injunction Obtained by Eastern Roads.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The interstate commerce commission today ordered sale of interchangeable scrip coupon mileage books postponed from May 1 until January 1, 1924. The action was taken as a result of an injunction obtained by eastern railroads in federal court at Boston, forbidding sale of the books which provide for 2,500 miles of travel for $72 or 20 per cent below the regular rate.

MARINE WORKERS ON STRIKE

Eighty Thousand Men Called Out in Effort to Tie Up New York Harbor Shipping.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Members of the marine transport workers' international union were called out today in an effort to tie up shipping in New York harbor.

Headquarters of the strikers maintained that 80,000 would be affected by the strike. The principal demand was for wage increases above the shipping board scale. This union has no connection with the international seamen's union, which is a member of the A. F. of L.

My Baby Skin
Soft and rosy as 40 years ago. Due to a new-type clay
By Edna Wallace Hopper

Almost any girl one-fourth my age might envy my complexion. Its color, its texture, its smoothness and its bloom. Yet I have been a star in musical comedy for more than 20 years.

Today I am famous the country over for the beauty I retain. I look like a girl of 19.

I owe this to my mother. She taught me to foster and preserve my beauty. Together we traveled half the world over to find the best ways known to do it. These beauty helps cost me years of searching and a fortune, but they made me what I am. Now, in sheer gratitude, I am aiding others to get them, and at modest cost. I hope in this way to bring to millions what they brought to me and mine.

White Youth Clay

I owe my complexion, above all, to a clay I found in France. Clay was then a novelty, used by famous beauties (and by a few of those same them famous.

Now countless women are using clay. Clay has become a recognized essential to beauty at its best. Also to continued youth. The results are resistless to women who care for their looks.

But many are using crude and muddy clays, still as I did years ago. Thanks to science, I have found something ten times better.

Now a super-clay

The clay I use—my White Youth Clay, is the final result of 20 years of scientific study. Experts analyzed and compared many kinds of clay, until they found one, mineral-laden, which brings the maximum results.

They found ways to refine it, to remove the useless mud. Thus they produced a white, clean, dainty clay, a delightful thing to use.

Then they found factors to be added to bring multiplied results. In 20 years they thus produced the clay I use today.

For all women now

I have now arranged so that all may get this clay. My White Youth Clay will amaze you, whatever clay you've used. No other clay I have ever seen can in any way compare.

It brings a new complexion with a rosy, youthful bloom. Many women, in 30 minutes, seem to drop ten years. Pimples and blackheads go, blemishes and wrinkles disappear. Young girls gain new freshness. Older skins regain bloom.

All drug stores and toilet counters now sell Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay—50c and $1 per tube. Also my Youth Cream, which should follow the clay. Also my Facial Youth, my liquid cleanser. Also my Hair Youth, which brought my original hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.

I urge you to try my White Youth Clay in fairness to yourself.—Advertisement.

ERADICATION BILL MOVING

ADVANCED TO THIRD READING IN LOWER BRANCH.

Seven Democrats Join Republicans While Two or Three Others Grasp at Last Straw in Nature of Alibi.

Seven house democrats cast their lot with 46 republicans in the house Wednesday and H. R. 668, appropriating $285,000 for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis was advanced to third reading 53 to 34. Since eradication did not appeal to Governor Bryan as a thing worth while and was not included in his budget message, the measure will require sixty votes on third reading. Action of the senate in putting the $285,000 item in the general appropriation bill gave several democrats a last straw for use as an alibi.

Three republicans voted with 31 democrats against advancement. They are: Nelson, Poliard and Strehlow. Dutcher, Keyes and Raasch, minority members who on Tuesday voted with the republicans to approve H. R. 584, companion of 668, as presented by the conference group, rode with their party Wednesday. Representative Theo Osterman, minority floor leader, who voted not to concur on Tuesday, cast his vote for H. R. 668. He explained that while the compromise conference agreement is not entirely satisfactory to him, 85 per cent of the appropriation will be used in counties under the area testing plan.

"I don't want to explain my vote," said Regan, another prominent democrat who voted against the measure.

"I vote yes to avoid an explanation when I get home," said Gould, republican.

Representative Broome, democrat, took a slap at politicians who would profess to know more concerning the needs of cattle men and the cattle industry than do the farmers and the men selected by farmers to represent them as heads of the several live-stock associations.

"I must necessarily give my confidence and my vote for the farmers and the heads of their associations," he said.

"The amount is carried in the appropriation bill. Time enough to consider it there," said Keyes, democrat.

"Because it is included in the maintenance measure is no reason why you should oppose it here," said Mears, chairman of the house finance committee.

Many of the democrats became lost, strayed or stolen on H. R. 632, appropriating $25,000 for use and maintenance of the state library commission. Here is another activity ignored by the governor. Some of the so-called party spokesmen including Osterman, Regan and O'Malley stuck to the party sails and opposed a bill for the benefit of small town libraries and for inmates of state institutions.

Fifteen democrats together with 46 republicans voted for the measure on third reading. Twenty-three democrats and nine republicans voted aaginst. The vote was 61 to 32. Since this is an appropriation not of the governor's choosing, a three-fifths vote was required. The democratic opposition was sufficiently strong to require a call of the house. Several minority men rubbed their eyes and scrutinized the roll call to ascertain what had happened to cause some of their men to leave the reservation without permission.

MONUMENT FOR DOUGHBOY.

PARIS.—(By Mail.)—Two ideas of America's participation in the world war will be embodied in a statue to be unveiled next Fourth of July, in the place des Etats-Unis—United States Square—where Woodrow Wilson lived when he was attending the court of nations which terminated with the treaty of Versailles. The monument, which is the work of Jean Boucher, who made the famous statue of Victor Hugo in the island of Guernsey, shows the fighting doughboy dashing over the top at Chateau Thierry and the "unknown poilu" waving his cap at his French comrades as he takes the boat to go back across the ocean, his task accomplished. By the side of the American is a French soldier grasping the hand of the warrior from over the seas.

The Vital Flame

A Stirring Serial of Primitive Passion

by May Christie

CHAPTER XXI.

Warwick Scores.

Marcella knit her white brow for a moment.

"Yes, I've heard that before. It may be true. On the other hand, it would be a frightful risk to take."

Kind and thoughtful as Warwick Treman had been recently, would he ever be able to efface the image of Miles Holden from her mind?

But of course it was all over with Miles! He hadn't written. She had waited for his letter for two dreary weeks. That interminable silence.

She had even pocketed her pride, and twice rung up his studio, only to be told each time that he was still in Paris. She wouldn't give her name, and hoped that Miles would never come to hear of it.

Yes, to forget him absolutely was the only way to happiness.

And how frightfully kind and sympathetic Warwick had become! He would be a man to trust, to lean on.

That stupid threat of bringing the Swiss woman as a maid to Lady Warrington had been merely the result of sudden shock—the shock of hearing she intended to marry someone else—he had apologized for it a dozen times, and called himself a cad and blackguard.

She had forgiven him, and almost forgotten the incident.

Life with Warwick Treman would hold no glorious passion and few thrills. But it would be safe and sheltered....and luxurious. Marcella, if the truth be told, fully appreciated yachts and cars and country houses, foreign travel and entertaining. She loved a circle of interesting, talented friends!

Married to Warwick, she could have these things and many more.

Miles' silence was sufficient assurance that he did not love her, that indeed the boardship enchantment had been merely a passing romance, engineered to while away the times.

Men busy with the arts were often just like that!

Warwick was speaking again, softly, persuasively.

"As I such an ogre that you couldn't spare me even a tiny portion of your heart?"

She hesitated, then she said:

"I'm fond of you. I believe that lately I've been growing fonder. I suppose girls are like that. Kindness and consideration count."

Warwick was pleased.

"You'll find yourself getting fonder all the time. I intend to leave no stone unturned, to win you! That doesn't make you angry, does it?"

"Oh no." As a matter of fact, it held balm for her wounded pride.

And she knew lots of girls who were keen about this man. They thought him handsome, fascinating. They would have jumped at him!

Real love would surely come, in time. She must learn to forget Miles Holden. He wasn't worthy of any woman's love—philanderer that he was.

"I was talking to your father yesterday at his club. He approves of me as a son-in-law, Marcella."

She nodded.

"Oh yes, I know it. But—"—with a hint of mischief brightening the sadness of her face—"dear old dad's so unworldly and up in the clouds that he's no judge of character. Anyone who takes the least interest in his 'researches' and mummies and museums is considered charming."

Warwick Treman did not answer that, but said:

"I'd be so glad to help him, dear. Indeed, I'd make a handsome settlement on him. Then he could pursue his work, full steam ahead, and no worries."

Marcella looked thoughtful.

"He's as proud as Lucifer! He wouldn't let you."

Treman leant back in his chair and fumbled for his cigaret case.

"Oh, it's quite the usual thing. Besides, he needn't know. As you say, he's not a practical man of affairs, and would probably look on the money as manna dropped from heaven. We could make him believe it was a legacy from someone interested in archaeology."

He offered the girl a cigaret. She took one, lighting it abstractedly.

"By the way, I'd almost forgotten—I met the postman on the doorstep with some letters. The old boy was in a hurry, so he gave them to me." He handed Marcella four envelopes. "Two for your father. Two for you."

She grasped them eagerly. A wave of red ran up into her smooth cheeks. There was just a chance....

Ah no! No Paris postmark!

"Thanks, Warwick." Her voice was flat and toneless.

"Come out for a breath of air, dear. You look a bit seedy. My car's waiting, and a blow up on the heath would do you good."

"Oh, very well." She rose listlessly, and got her hat and wrap. Anything to forget!

On the doorstep they met her father. He looked old and tired and shabby, and her heart smote her.

"I'll be home in an hour, daddy. Do go and have a rest. You look fagged out."

He gave her a pathetic smile, and nodded, as if pleased to see the two together.

Warwick Treman handed her into his big, luxurious car, as though she were extremely fragile, and fussed about her, tucking a fur rug about her knees. Marcella leant back comfortably. The seats were low, and splendidly upholstered.

Why Hudson Owners Buy Hudsons Again and Again

Most Hudson owners remain Hudson owners. They find nothing to tempt them elsewhere. Some have owned five, ten, sixteen successive Hudsons.

They have found each succeeding Hudson a better, smoother, finer car.

Those who drive today's Super-Six call it the greatest Hudson ever built. Its price makes it conspicuous not only among cars of comparable fineness, but even among those that you never classify with Hudson in quality.

Good Night Stories

By Blanche Silver

Illustrated by Neva Harrison

THE FUNNY NOTIONS OF THE DIFFERENT WATER-FOLK.

"DEAR me," sighed Dotty, "but this is a funny old world," and with a sigh she seated herself on the sands and watched the waves rippling back and forth on the beach. "Even the waves don't know what to do next."

"Just what I've come to straighten out," whispered a soft voice, and Squeedee, the little elfin from Joyland, sat down on the sand beside Dotty. "For some time there has been quite a discussion in the water-world, and I was just on my way down there when I saw you."

"Oh, take me, too, Squeedee," Dotty begged. "I'm so tired of doing nothing."

Squeedee took Dotty's hand and they rushed into the very next wave that swept the shore and were carried out quite a distance.

"I guess we'll drop down now," said the elfin. "So watch yourself." Down, down they sank in the waters until they reached the very bottom of the ocean. There in the sand on his side rested Mr. Flat-fish, with his two big eyes on the same side of his head. Beside him on a rock sat Mr. Oyster and down in the sands on a weed sat Willy Crab.

Dotty knew by the expression on all of their faces that they had just been having a discussion of some kind.

"I can't help what you think," declared Mr. Flat-fish, "I still insist that it's far nicer and shows better judgment to lie on one's side this way than to rest any other way."

"Hum," grumbled Willy Crab. "To me it certainly looks silly. But I suppose you've never been taught differently, so you shouldn't be criticized."

"Great room you have to prattle," laughed Mr. Oyster. "If there's one thing I think silly it's to see a fellow with as many legs as you have crawling backward over the sand."

"Take Me Too, Squeedee."

"I think it's silly, too," added Mr. Flat-fish, "and just as much out of date as lying on the sand the way I do."

"Tut! Tut! My friends!" laughed Squeedee. "This is too lovely a world to spend one's time in quarrelling. What if Mr. Flat-fish does lie on his side that way? What harm does he do? Possibly he can see better that way, for both his eyes are on one side."

"And what if Willy Crab does prefer walking backward? If he feels safer walking that way, then that's the proper way for him to travel. As long as each and every one of us does the best he can to make the others around him happy and contented we'll all have no time for fussing as to which one of us is right."

"Well, I do feel safer walking back, ward," replied Willy Crab. "Then I know no one's following me to step on my toes. I'm sorry if I've misjudged Mr. Flat-fish. But I thought——"

"Never mind what you thought, Mr. Crab," spoke up Mr. Flat-fish. "I'll forgive you, if you on the other hand will forgive me, if I've hurt your feelings."

At this every one laughed and Mr. Oyster jumped down off the stone. He and Dotty and Squeedee danced a jig, and before long Mr. Flat-fish and Willy Crab were dancing with them and they were all happy once more.

WORDS of WISE MEN

Man is a bundle of habits.

Who waits for time loses time.

Be wise today—'tis madness to defer.

Timidity enthroned is usually tyranny.

Small service is true service while it lasts.

None think the great unhappy but the great.

Vain is the world—but only to the vain.

Nothing is more terrible than active ignorance.

A wilful man has need to be very wise.

Sometimes even wisdom surrenders to desire of gain.

Allowance is to be made for him who first attempts a thing.

It is easier to give counsel than to bear sufferings manfully.

Allow time and moderate delay—haste administers all things badly.

Often it happens to a man flying from fate that he rushes into the midst of it.

One part of knowledge consists in being ignorant of such things as are not worthy to be known.

The three things most difficult for some are to keep a secret, to forget an injury and to make good use of leisure.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

What the Expansive Mrs. Marks and Her Petey Kindly Offered.

I MOVED slightly to one side as Dicky put himself between me and the small sleek man whom the flamboyant Mrs. Marks with such patent naive pride, had just introduced as her husband.

I was oddly, tensely curious to note every detail of the appearance of these queer new neighbors. I was also anxious, if possible, to mitigate the intense frigidity which Dicky was displaying toward them. I knew his dislike of anything common or underbred or pushing, and Mr. and Mrs. Marks indubitably possessed and were exhibiting all three of these qualities.

But I also realized what Dicky's masculine impatience and quick temper would have scorned to consider—that these people were our nearest neighbors, neighbors also in an unusually intimate sense, because of our being compelled to share a common entrance and hall, and that it was far better not to antagonize them with any manner which they could construe as snobbishness.

"Get a Move on, Nell."

With a little bound of my pulses I realized that the diminutive Mr. Marks not only had correctly gauged Dicky's protective movement and curt manner, but that he resented them. His beady black eyes darted from Dicky's face to mine, and then rested malevolently upon his wife's face, with her vermilion lips and thin line of plucked eyebrows standing out grotesquely from the rest of her rouged and powdered mask.

"Get a move on, Nell," he growled. "We can't stand around here, all night."

"Keep your shirt on," she advised him with such hearty good humor back of the inelegance, and so infectious a twinkle in her china-blue eyes, that shocked as I was, I had hard work to keep my lips from quirking into a smile. "We're going right away."

She turned to me with a broad, friendly grin.

"Me and Petey, we always do some of our marketing around this time," she said expansively, "and seeing as you're new to the neighborhood, I thought maybe you'd like to have me do some errands for you. I know all the places around here, and they don't any of 'em put nothing over on me, I'll tell the pop-eyed world. So when you want me to show you the ropes, just give me a wireless, and I'll be on the job. Is there anything you want tonight?"

"My Petey's in the—"

"Not a thing," Dicky said curtly, but I moved toward Mrs. Marks with a disarming smile.

"You are most kind to think of me," I said in as friendly fashion as I could manage, "and some day I shall be delighted to take advantage of your offer."

"I'll be there with sleigh bells on whenever you're ready," she responded. "Help me on with my coat, Petey, that's a good kid, and don't be sulky."

The saturnine Petey, thus adjured, unfolded from his arm the most gorgeous fur cloak I had seen in many a day and folded it around his liege lady. Its lustrous folds of real seal rippled almost to her feet, while its immense collar and deep wide cuffs were of the finest quality of mink. Then he shrugged himself into an overcoat whose trimmings of seal were as elaborate and costly as the fur of his wife's coat.

Then he muttered a surly "So long," and started for the door.

"Ain't my coat the cat's whiskers?" Mrs. Marks demanded with childish pleasure as she saw the involuntary admiring glance I had given the gorgeous wrap—really good furs—the best are an unsatisfied longing with me. "You see, my Petey's in the——"

"Tchk." It is the only interpretation I can give of the queer snarling noise which her spouse made in his throat at this juncture.

Whatever its significance, it was singularly effective, for Mrs. Marks gave a quick frightened glance at him, another at Dicky and me, and scuttled toward the door.

Dicky advanced rigidly and shut it after them, but we could hear from the hall outside a quick, frightened, high-pitched:

"Oh, Petey, I didn't"—and a low guttural growl that was like the snarl of a suddenly roused wild animal.

Then the outer door slammed, and Dicky and I were left facing each other in angry astonishment.

CONSIDER all the different things—differing peoples and different customs—on which the moon looks down. Changing as it does in its own luminous globe, the moon may seem to some to be not one but two, and the piquing thought is lent some measure of proof by the varying ways it looks upon this side the world and upon the other side.

How different are the ways of one girl from those of another! Yet both, at heart at least, are the same in love!

WHERE MEN FORM THE STRANGE HABIT OF CHEWING COAL.

FEW persons who carelessly toss a shoveiful of coal on the fire realize the dangers braved by the coal miners. As in all callings where the element of danger plays a part, there are superstitions. But on investigation many of these superstitions have a reason.

For instance, in the great coal mines in Yorkshire, Eng., if a fatality occurs, all the miners stop work and go home.

It is supposed to be unlucky to continue work on that day, although many of the men will declare that it is simply a mark of tribute to a comrade who has gone.

It was on Good Friday, a sanctified day to the coal miners, that a terrible accident occurred in the Yorkshire coal fields. There on that day [illegible] down in the mine, which lowers them thirteen at a time.

But these same miners go on extraordinary things, which to the visitor would seem to bring more bad luck than working on Good Friday or after an accident.

It is the habit of chewing coal. This was explained by a miner in the following way:

He said that, of course, in the mines the men cannot smoke for fear of causing an explosion of a fire, and that the constant bending causes heartburn if they chew tobacco.

Their mouths get so fearfully dry they must chew something to keep the saliva flowing, so they pick up a piece of coal and chew it for that reason.

It was reported that one miner had died of chewing too much coal, but this was met with a general laugh, as one particularly strapping Yorkshireman announced that they would all be dead if that were the case.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Should a girl consult her stepmother when she wants to go out with young men?

Is it right to obey a stepmother or take her advice when she is doing for you all the time?

My stepmother is good to me, but I don't like to work. I like to go and have a good time. Should I go places if she objects?

JOLLY GIRL.

JOLLY GIRL: You say your stepmother is kind to you. Don't you realize she is trying to take your own mother's place? Make her your confidante, consult her on all matters, and try to please her, my dear.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of 20 years, and have a very affectionate disposition. The young man whom I love is older than I, and has proved his love for me, yet we are not engaged. Is it proper for me to express my love to him? I am independent and will be earning my own living.

HELEN.

HELEN: Act in a dignified, modest way, my dear, and you will make no mistake.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of 18, and I have a very dear friend who is 19. We are both in love with the same man, and we do not know which of us he prefers. I would like to give him up for her sake, but I know that I could not live without him, and neither can she. What would you advise? HEART-BROKEN.

HEART-BROKEN: Keep on being good friends all of you, my dear. If the young man should decide to marry one of you the other should be a good sport and still continue to be friendly with both.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two girls in our teens, and we want your advice as to what you think about our going with two young men of about 20 and 25. They seem to think lots of us, and we love them dearly.

They give us nice presents very often, and we would like to know whether it is for the best to accept them.

SARAH and S.

SARAH and S.: Unless you are engaged to a young man it is not proper to accept anything but books, candy or flowers.

CLARA MORRIS Writes About The Garret

IN these days of postage-stamp apartments when the guest most honored, most in demand, is he or she who can most cheerfully sleep in a hammock, doesn't a lump and an ache come to one's throat at the thought of the immeasurable loss to the rising generation of that thing glamorous—that thing of unfading interest—the garret?

Famous in story, in biography, in poetry, valued by practical housewives, as a "sick bay" for the old, feeble or crippled inanimates of her house and adored by children as a wondrous play place, one feels like crying: "What, Oh, what, is home without a garret?"

Into every garret a lance of sunlight pierces—perhaps slanting, downward and narrow, perhaps broad and level. But garret sunlight is always alive with myriads of atoms and motes madly dancing, wheeling joyfully to extinction, to the fascination of some watching child.

Garden of Exquisite Dreams

If unjustly larruped in the woodshed, a boy with catlike stealth and caution, made for the dim, old garret where his tears of helpless fury could not shame him, while dreams of his future noble attitude toward his shame-stricken father, then offering apology for today's wrong-doings, soothe wounded pride and help him to forget the smart and pain of certain tenderly rounded, bulgy parts and mental anguish.

Among those who will probably be somewhat concerned at the passing of the garret, we must, I think, count the devil—that visible, personal, protean, often courtier-like devil, so absolutely believed in for ages with hidden hoof and tail under arm, wealthy, affable, this diable courtois seeking "a foeman worthy of his steel."

The mighty adversary has often been pictured as making his prideful way to an icy, foodless, dim-lighted "garite" as a perfect market-place for bargaining for and chaffering over the price of a human soul. Starving genius and courtly devil have transacted business in garrets for centuries. The devil will probably miss garrets—at least in fiction.

Then think of the young playwright, the story-writer, yes, even the novelist of the garretless time to come. Where, oh, where, can a missing will be found if not in the grandfather-clock left for years in the garret? Why, romantic literature will be entirely out of plumb.

Still, the loss of the garret will fall heaviest upon children. Garden of exquisite dreams for the sensitive! A theatre so perfect that at imagination's order, a line of towering mountains will instantly sink beneath tossing waves. I have myself found on the margin of such a sea, the footprints of a "Man Friday." The mere thrusting down into the back of a boy's jacket of the handle of a feather-duster war bonnet will bring leaping and yelling savages from the corners of any garret worth its Attic salt—every man Jack of 'em in war paint, of course!

A Happy Thought

And oh, crowning glory of dim garrets! When sunlight fades, soft sighs—faint rustlings—no, not a bit mousey, but deliciously frightening are heard—and creepy creeps go up your legs and back. A cold wind moves your hair. You are just one delicious thrill of terror—'cause there are strange beings in garrets.

It's very sad—this passing of the garret. But—happy thought—perhaps the garage will take its place!

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

The Authority on Home Cooking

Here Are Four Desserts That May Be Served Cold.

COLD puddings are popular for spring and summer desserts. The advantage is that they can be made in the morning and have all day to chill. In making the puddings remember that anything chilled must be flavored or seasoned a little bit stronger than if it is to be served hot or even warm.

Chilled Custard.

Make a boiled custard with one quart of rich milk, three-quarters of a cupful of sugar, the beaten yolks of four eggs and the white of one egg. Flavor with a dessert-spoonful of vanilla flavoring and cook until the liquid coats the back of the spoon. Beat the whites of the eggs very stiff and dry, adding slowly a heaping teaspoonful of powdered sugar which has been sifted to each egg-white. Drop by spoonfuls onto a very lightly buttered tin and cook in a medium oven for 10 minutes or more. Open the oven door if they cook too fast. Then remove with a sharp knife and lay on top of the cooling custard. Set to chill in a dry, cold place. Serve fresh lady-fingers or plain cake with the custard.

Chilled Rice Pudding.

Wash and boil a half cupful of rice in a cupful and a half of milk and the same of water, a saltspoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of butter. When soft, pour into a buttered pudding-dish and add enough rich milk to fill the dish, a cupful of sugar, a dessert-spoonful of vanilla, another saltspoonful of salt, another teaspoonful of butter, beaten yolk of an egg and a cupful of seeded and coarsely chopped raisins. Bake in a slow oven until it is soft and rather of a delicate brown. Should custard need a drink add a cupful of hot milk. Cool the pudding. Then chill it before serving.

Chilled Prune Pie.

Wash, soak and stew a pound of medium-sized prunes. Add when they are almost done a small cupful of sugar. When cool, stone the prunes and place them in a pie-plate lined with a good tender crust. Add the juice and a cupful of rich cream. Roll up once. Then pour over the beaten yolks of two eggs. Cool slightly, then turn into the pie. Put on the top crust and bake until the cream is done. Cool the pie, chill it and serve with plain rich [illegible]

Spanish Cream.

Soak for an hour one-half boxful of powdered gelatine in a quart of milk. Then put on the fire and cook until it begins to thicken. Add a cupful of sugar. When melted add the beaten yolks of five eggs. Beat in the boiling gelatine and milk and flavor with vanilla. Pour into a mold and set away to cool. Serve with cream.

Ways to Make Your Complexion Really Lovely

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

A QUESTION of recurring importance is that of the proper care of the skin.

Of all the beauty precautions which interest women, I should say this question of skin culture is most pursued. The desire for a rose-petal skin flourishes eternally, for every woman knows she hasn't much chance to be beautiful if her complexion is unattractive. It must be smooth and soft and alluring if she is going to attract people to notice her other good qualities. Otherwise she is working under a handicap.

Then another reason why you must keep your skin always under strict surveillance is that it reacts differently to different seasons of the year.

In the summer when it's hot you may decide your skin is oily, for it seems shinier than usual. Then when winter comes your skin may begin to chafe, your skin is much thinner and dry, for cold wind and cold weather are apt to give it this feeling.

Because of the variety of races in America it is difficult to say what is the American type of skin. Brunettes are likely to have the ivory skin of the Latin race, while blondes most often have the fair skin of the English or Dutch.

However, the American skin is not unlike that of the old country picture. Therefore it needs more care than if it were less sensitive. For just as sheer silks and laces are more perishable than the heavier quality, so is the skin of more delicate texture. It is more apt to fade and to show fine wrinkles and to lose the quality of [illegible]

ROYAL RITES EXTRAVAGANT

ALL LONDON PREPARES FOR WEDDING OF YORK.

British Socialists Warn That It Will Lead to "Bloody Revolution or Economic Collapse."

LONDON, April 25.—British socialists warned today that extravagance involved in the royal wedding of the duke of York to Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon tomorrow is leading to "bloody revolution or economic collapse."

But John Jones of the dinner pail was too busy taking care that he and the wife and kids found a place of vantage from which to see the wedding procession, to worry about it.

"Conditions similar to the present —garish display by the rich and squalid poverty for the poor—cannot last.

Approach Collapse.

"Conditions in England are approaching the state of things that existed in France before Louis the Sixteenth had his head cut off. It is impossible to tell whether we are headed for a bloody revolution or an economic collapse, but something is bound to happen."

Undismayed by the protests of Lansbury and other labor leaders, royalty and nobility went through eleventh hour pantomimic rehearsals today for the great event. Those fortunate enough to obtain tickets to the Abbey or to the temporary grandstand erected outside, went thru the performance of taking their places, so that nothing will mar the machinelike smoothness with which it is planned to conduct the nuptials and the incidental processions.

Sparkling, dazzling to the eyes, diamonds and precious stones in tiaras, bracelets and necklaces—presents for the bride—are on display at Buckingham Palace for the last time today. Already more than a quarter of a million pounds is represented by the wedding gifts and messengers are entering the palace in a steady stream. Princess Mary and her husband, Viscount Lascelles sent embroidered sheets, pillow slips and linen—one of the few useful gifts among the thousands Lady Elizabeth has received.

As for socially nobility and the American visitors who have poured out probably $5,000,000 in dresses, parties and presents for the great event, they are in a flurry of excitement as the hour of the wedding approaches. Champagne dinners, lavish decorations, priceless jewels, are among the upper classes' contributions to the occasion.

"Conditions in England are rapidly approaching the state of things that existed in France just before Louis the Sixteenth had his head cut off." a labor member of parliament protests.

The extraordinary hold which the house of Windsor has upon the common people, however, allays most fears on this subject. When the modest Scotch girl whom tomorrow's event may be creating a future queen of England, drives with her prince thru miles of human lined streets after the ceremony at the Abbey, there will be no stint of cheers.

Popular Bride.

And because of the extraordinary popularity o fthe principals, that of the bride being second only to the public admiration accorded Princess Mary, their health will be drunk in east end tap rooms as in west end hotels, and the bells of Tooting and Woping and Hackney Wick will ring as fervently as the aristocratic ones on St. Peter and St. Paul's. The "common people" claim the duke and the lady of his choice as their own and turn a deaf ear, for a day, to the protests of the socialists.

There were perceptible, even at an early hour today, a gradual drift as tho of the city's entire population, toward the scene of the royal wedding and the route of the procession. By nightfall thousands will be in their chosen places, prepared cheerfully to camp out for the night, so that the dawn may find them in points of vantage from which to catch a glimpse of the duke and his bride.

In the latter, they will see a bonny Scotch lassie of noble lineage, petite with bronze hair—not bobbed—and the blue eyes and high color of her country, an outdoor girl, horsewoman (the duke once proposed, unsuccessfully, while on horseback); tennis player and a good humored golfer. In view of the circumstances which might lead her some day to the throne—if the prince of Wales fails to take a bride he may step aside to allow the duke to reign—Lady Elizabeth twice refused the duke's persistent proffers of marriage.

The love match, in which Britain delights, especially since it brings a British bride to the house of Windsor, might have been without tomorrow's happy consummation, had it not been for the duke's persistency.

Like her fiance, Lady Elizabeth is a keen student of social problems, and the traditions of the royal house in pushing industrial reform will be carried out by the duke and duchess.

Not Opposing Couple.

Against the wedding couple itself, almost at times lost sight of in the magnificence attendant upon their nuptials, labor therefor has no protest. But George Lansbury, labor member of parliament, and former editor in chief of the Daily Herald, in an interview today voiced his party's criticism of the affair as a state function.

"It is deplorable and disraceful to squander money for extravagant display this entire week in connection with the duke's wedding," Lansbury said. "It amounts to profligacy.

"The duke of York and Lady Elizabeth are nice young people and we have no objection to their marriage but we don't want to pay for it.

"The decorations and displays and other features of the wedding cost several million dollars which could be better employed helping our two million unemployed.

We protest against the extravagance of this wedding in view of our national poverty. If not only directly but indirectly the money spent by visitors, would contribute in its trickle down to the fate of the poor.

NEWS FROM NEBRASKA

PLAN BIG DAY AT GENEVA

Stock Judging Contest, Field Meet and Declamatory Contest All on April 27.

GENEVA, Neb., April 25.—The biggest day in the high school calendar will be Friday, April 27. Te morning will be given over to a contest in stock judging, in the afternoon will be held the annual field meet of the Fillmore county athletic association and in the evening the fourth district declamatory contest will be held in the city auditorium.

The day's activities will start at 8 o'clock a. m., when high school teams entered for stock judging will meet at the farm of O. E Harmon, on the D L. D. highway, one and three-fourths miles east of Fairmont. The following high schools have been invited to send teams Hastings, Clay Center, Fairfield, York, Friend, Milligan, Fairbury, Milford, Aurora, Stromsburg and Blue Hill.

At 6 o'clock p. m., the Geneva community club will serve a dinner to the contest teams, their coaches and the judges in the Smith-Hughes building. During the dinner Geneva high school students will present a musical program.

This is the first time a stock judging contest has been held here.

The track meet of county schools will take place at the fairgrounds beginning at 2 p. m. The opening games of the high school baseball tournament will also be played Friday, starting at 10:30 a. m. when Exeter and Ohiowa play. Geneva and Milligan will play at 1 p. m. Fairmont and Shickley drew a bye. The remaining games of the tournament will be played at Fairmont on a later date.

The events of the track meet will be 100 yard dash, 440 yard dash, 880 yard dash, one mile, running broad jump. Also 120 high hurdles, 220 high hurdles, one-half mile relay race, shot put, discus and high jump. A silver loving cup will be presented by the Geneva community club to the school winning the most points.

At the declamatory contest in the evening on Friday, speakers who won in the contests of the three sections of the fourth district are to compete for honors. The classes to be represented are oratorical, extemporaneous speaking, humorous, and dramatic. Schools sending representatives are Aurora, Walton, Crete, Clay Center, Giltner, Fairfield, Tecumseh, Holmesville, Hebron Academy, Dewitt, York and Geneva. Miss Fannie Potter, who won first in public speaking at Fairfield last week, will represent Geneva.

Saturday afternoon and evening the schoolmasters' club of the central district will hold a meeting here.

TO DECIDE WINNING TEAM

Clay Center and Geneva High Schools to Battle for District Championship.

GENEVA, Neb., April 25. — Clay Center and Geneva high school debating teams will decide the district championship here Wednesday evening, April 25, and the winning team will represent the district in the state debating tournament at Lincoln May 10-12. The Geneva trio which has won every debate in the practice series but one is composed of Howard Hamilton, Roland Propst and Donald Warner. Miss Ellen Maunder of the high school faculty, is their coach. Geneva's record this season is as follows: York at York, won by York. Won the rest of the contests following: Harvard at Harvard, Superior at Geneva; Harvard at Harvard; Superior at Superior; Aurora at Aurora; Aurora at Geneva; Fairbury at Geneva; Nelson, by default.

In the final debate Geneva will take the negative and Clay Center the affirmative of the question: Resolved, "That Nebraska Should Adopt the Kansas Industrial Court System."

WINS THE HISTORY MEDAL

Raymond Underwood of Fairmont Awarded National Prize for Best Progress in Study.

GENEVA, Neb., April 25.—The gold medal, offered by the Stephen Bennett chapter D. A. R., of Fairmont, to the rural pupil, making best progress in study of United States history, was won by Raymond Underwood. The winner is thirteen years of age and is a pupil in district 24, where Miss Irene Murphy is the teacher. He passed the examination given eighth grade pupils this month by a grade of 90. The questions were considered by teachers to be unusually difficult. The presentation of the medal will take place Friday, April 27, at the school house in district 24, when members of the D. A. R and pupils and teachers of the county will attend.

NEW PAWNEE POSTMASTER

Change Delayed Because President Was on Vacation.

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., April 25.—Claude A. Barker, Pawnee City's new postmaster, took over the office, having just received his commission from Washington. A. E. Ovendon, the retiring official, was supposed to leave the office April 1, according to the terms of his resignation, but owing to the fact that President Harding was vacationing in Florida when the commission for the newly appointed postmaster was ready for his signature, the change was delayed. Barker was the fortunate winner among nine candidates for the position. For many years he has been manager of the Farmer's Co-Operative Produce company. He was succeeded in this position by Ray Eddy, his former assistant. Barker is a veteran of the world war, having served many months over seas. He saw actual fighting on the front lines altho he escaped injury himself. Since his return he has been active in affairs of the local American Legion post and other civic affairs. The retiring postmaster will resume his old position as editor of the Pawnee Chief, which has been filled by his son-in law, Ira J. Williams, during his office.

BOY WHO FELL ON FORK IS IMPROVING

ELLSWORTH, Neb., April 25.—Charles, the five year old son of T. W. Patton living south of here, who was so seriously injured the early part of last week by sliding from a straw covered shed on to an upturned fork, is now out of danger and getting along splendidly. He was badly lacerated but prompt and capable medical attention brought him out of a danger that had promise of serious complication. The little fellow was gathering eggs and was making a short cut to other nests.

Hold W. C. T. U. Convention.

RED CLOUD, Neb., April 25.—The W. C. T. U. held a district convention here, at which delegates were present from Fillmore, Thayer, Nuckolls, Webster and Harlan counties. The principal speakers at the meeting were Mrs. Clara C. Clayton, state vice president, Lincoln; Miss Georgia Hepley of the federal enforcement department, Washington, D. C.; and Miss Winona Jewell, Denver, Colo., representing the young people's work. This is the first of a series of seven conventions to be held in the state.

DEPOSITORS NOT ANXIOUS

Steady But Not Long Line to Draw Money From State Bank of Omaha.

OMAHA, April 25.—A steady line of depositors of the defunct American State bank which closed its doors last November greeted Receiver Fred Bodie and his staff of clerks in the lobby of the State bank of Omaha when they began paying off obligations of the closed institution.

More than $500,000 had been paid by noon, Bodie said, but most of this amount was included in checks which had been mailed to the larger claimants.

There was no confusion during the paying off process. At no time was there a large line waiting.

"The money is here and they know they can get it any time in the next thirty days," was Bodies' explanation of the seeming indifference of depositors to get their money.

BRICK THROWING EXPERT

E. L. Ramsey, Former State League Catcher, Forces Madison Chief of Police to Shoot Him.

MADISON, Neb., April 25.—E. L. Ramsey, Columbus, former Nebraska state league catcher, threw bricks with such deadly accuracy when Chief of Police Kennedy tried to arrest him on a liquor charge that the chief was finally forced to shoot Ramsey in the leg before the arrest could be made. Kennedy was held at bay for several hours.

After being placed in jail Ramsey set fire to the bedclothing and kicked out several panes of window glass. The fire was extinguished before any damage was done. Ramsey's wound is not serious.

Chiropractor Is Released.

MINATARE, Neb., April 25.—Mrs. Grace Wortz, the chiropractor, who has been in the limelight in this county for several months, she having been arrested several times and as a result has had several hearings in the district court, it being charged that she had been practicing contrary to the laws of the state. In the recent trial in district court the jury failed to reach any verdict after twenty-four hours' deliberation, it being reported that the vote stood ten to two for acquital when discharged. In this hearing no witnesses were called, the evidence as recorded in the former trial being read in full to the new jury, the instructions being given, and the case turned over to them for a decision. Very little time was used by the men who heard the evidence in finding the defendant not guilty and they rendered a verdict to that effect.

Snow at Ellsworth.

ELLSWORTH, Neb., April 25.—The snow that began falling early Sunday morning continued until late Monday evening thoroly drenching the entire western part of the state. From Mullen west the ground was covered with snow from a depth of several inches to more than a foot as the western borders of the state is reached. This more than gives sufficient moisture and the prospects for the spring and early summer growth was never better.

Wymore Teacher Weds.

WYMORE, Neb, April 25.—Arnold Boetcher, twenty-six, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Boetcher, prominent farmers west of Wymore for many years, and Miss Ruth Hague, twenty-five, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hague, long time residents of Wymore, were married at the Centenary Methodist church, at Beatrice, by Rev. Franklin Haas. The couple will live on the farm of the groom west of Wymore. Miss Hague had been a teacher in the Wymore high school for four years.

FREMONT RECTOR RESIGNS.

FREMONT, Neb., April 25.—Rev. A Fred Watkins, rector of the Fremont Episcopal church for the past three years, has resigned to accept a call to Kennewick, Wash. Ill-health was given as the reason for his departure from Fremont.

FREMONT SURGEON DIES.

FREMONT, Neb., April 25.—Dr George J. Haslam, widely known Nebraska surgeon, dropped dead of heart failure in his office Tuesday evening.

Good Health Secret of Beauty

Beauty lies in the care a woman bestows upon herself and in keeping at bay those dread ailments peculiar to her sex, which drag her down and leave telltale traces upon her countenance. Sparkling eyes the elastic step and a clear complexion never accompany organic troubles. Distressed expressions, a sallow complexion, dark circles under the eyes, lassitude, headaches, and mental depression are the telltale symptoms of women's ailments. Women so troubled should not lose a day in taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from roots and herbs, the most successful remedy known to overcome woman's ills and restore health and beauty.—Advertisement.

Clothes Cost Women Twice as much as Men

Chicago, Ill., April 22.—The cost of being well dressed has been estimated as twice as expensive for a woman as a man, by a local home economy expert here.

She says that while the individual business suit costs no more than a man's, a business girl must have a wider variety of clothes to get ahead.

When, in many cases, women's wages are lower, there is only one way a business girl can live up to the standard of dress expected of her. She must buy conservative, not "faddish" styles, of the best quality material and have her clothes cleaned often to lengthen their life.—Advt.

Are you in harmony with Nature?

All Nature pulsates with health—and with a call to you to benefit by her gifts.

From her chemistry of sunshine, rain and soil Nature provides the nutriment to sustain health, strength and energy. Trouble comes when Nature's plan is ignored, and deficient foods are eaten to please taste alone.

Grape-Nuts with cream or milk brings to you Nature's gift of vitamin, together with the iron, phosphorus and other mineral elements which your body must have. Partially predigested in the making, Grape-Nuts is quickly assimilated.

You'll be delighted with the crispness and flavor of this delicious, ready-to-eat cereal; and with Grape-Nuts as a regular part of your breakfast or lunch, you'll be following Nature's plan for healthful nutrition.

Ready to eat, with cream or milk. Sold wherever good food is sold or served—

Sports of all Sorts on Friday Program; Bike Riders Start Grinding Saturday

BASEBALL, BOXING AND TRACK LISTED

Lincoln State Leaguers Take on Oklahoma City While Nebraska University Tangles With Sooners.

The most fastidious of sportsmen should be able to satiate his craving for action here Friday. Baseball, boxing and a high school track meet are on the program.

The Lincoln state league club goes up against Jack Holland's Oklahoma City Indians at Landis field while Nebraska university's baseball team takes on the league-leading Sooners from Norman, at Rock Island park.

Nebraska Wesleyan's invitation high school track meet will be going forward at the new stadium during the afternoon.

In the evening the National guards stage their boxing show at the auditorium starting at 8:30 p. m.

There will be some left over for Saturday. The Oklahoma university team battles the Huskers again. The Friday game starts at 4 p. m. and the Saturday game at 3 p. m.

The championships among Lincoln's younger bicycle riders will be established at the state fair track when the Journal's bicycle racing carnival gets started at 1 p. m.

Taking it by and large it has all the earmarks of being a "large" week-end from a sporting standpoint.

MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF "IVORY"

Young Ballplayer Much in Demand Among Big League Clubs—War Halted Development of Recruits.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Almost a million dollars' worth of young ball players will be tried out this season in the major leagues. Most of them will make the grade not so much because they are great ball players but for the reason that the two big leagues are in desperate need of young blood.

Duties other than baseball which fell upon young men during the war times set the process of developing young players back about three years and it is just now that the minor leagues are beginning again to turn out stars in large numbers for the faster company.

Every club in the two big leagues has one or more young players holding down important jobs, and in several cases pennant chances depend in a large part on how they deliver.

This is particularly true with the St. Louis Browns, who have Robertson, a youngster, on third base, and Durst, another one, on first base. The fate of the St. Louis Cards also rests in a large part on how fast Holm, a college boy, comes in understudying Doc Lavan and how Bottomly gets along at first base. The Chicago White Sox also stake their chances on Willie Kamm, the California third baseman, and Cleveland has two important places occupied by youngsters—Lutz at third base and Summa in the outfield.

The New York Giants have two big gambles in Jimmy O'Connell, the $75,000 outfielder, and Jack Bentley, $65,000 southpaw pitcher. If they deliver, the Giants ought to be in by the middle of August.

Bowling

Four postponed games of the Capital league series were rolled on the Lincoln alleys, Tuesday night. The Dole Studio five whitewashed the Taylor Electrics, and the Fleming Jewels shut out the Ben Simon and Sons aggregation in the first set of games. In the second set, the Latsch Brothers and the Fleming Jewels won a majority of games from the Taylor Electrics and the F. R. Hussong's teams. The Taylor Electrics and the Fleming Jewels will roll another set to decide the winners of second section of the season's games. The winner of this match will roll against the Latsch Brothers team for the championship of the Capital City league. The scoring of the Tuesday night games:

TOMMY RYAN WILL BE THE THIRD MAN

"Philadelphia Tommy" to Officiate at National Guards' Show—Veteran Tells of One Experience.

Did you ever hear of a boxer getting a draw when his opponent was unable to be out of the hospital for two weeks while he was out and around the next day?

Such was the luck of Tommy Ryan who is to referee the Strayer-Schwabel ten-round bout at the national guards' show at the auditorium Friday night.

This Happened in Ohio.

The above mentioned draw happened in Youngstown, O., in '99 with Matty Matthews, then welterweight champion, on the catching end of the twenty-round battle. Tommy was up and around the day following the argument, but Matthews was not released from the hospital for two weeks.

The fight followed closely on the heels of the Billy Smith-Matthews fight early in the spring of that year in which the welter title changed hands.

Young Griffo, one of the classiest in his palmy days, was another to feel the weight of Ryan's socking for he hit the resin in the third round of a fight at Brookly in '97.

Police Stop the Fight.

Police interfered with Ryan's fight with Kid McPartland, now a famous referee, in the second round after the Kid had hit the cavnas six times. McPartland was then the lightweight title holder.

In addition to announcing the referee of the bout, Matchmaker Maher stated the principals of the three main bouts of the evening had agreed to arrive in Lincoln April 26 in order to give local fans a chance to see them in their preliminary workouts.

It's Miller Huggins' Turn to Chortle Now

Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, is a taciturn little man. He says very little and apparently hears very little of the criticism which has been his reward for giving New York two American League pennants and the greatest sport stadium in the world.

Huggins never answers his critics verbally, but he has found a much more forceful way of defending himself by silencing them with results that prove him right in most of the cases.

This spring Huggins was criticized because he ran a rather slip-shod training camp in which his players were allowed to do more or less as they pleased. He said they were all experienced men who knew best how to condition themselves. Huggins came north to start the season with six pitchers ready to work.

On the contrary, John McGraw ran the Giant camp with an iron hand. He prescribed a rigorous training schedule and forced his athletes thru in military fashion. Yet when McGraw was ready to open the season he didn't have a pitcher in real condition to go to work.

Huggins is staking everything on pitching to win another pennant for him and it would seem now that he obtained the objective of getting his hurlers ready for a fast start, regardless of the method in which it was done.

Catchweights Are Favored by Leonard

As long as he doesn't have to make weight, Benny Leonard, the lightweight champion, may engage in three or four big outdoor bouts this summer that might bring him in close to a half million dollars.

He has prospects for three bouts in his own class and one with Mickey Walker, the welterweight champion.

Benny can make 135 pounds, but he is not strong at the weight. However, catchweights probably will prevail if he fights Lew Tendler, Sailor Friedman or Charley White, as they are not keen about making the weight themselves.

DISCOVERER OF TUT'S GRAVE WAS ONCE FAMOUS TURFMAN

Lord Carnarvon, the deceased British archaeologist, considered in some circles as the victim of the spook of old King Tut, was better known as a turfman in England before he started digging around in the Valley of the Kings.

His colors—scarlet, blue collar and white cap—were registered as far back as 1897, and his thoroughbreds won many events of note, altho he never won one of the big classics. The first of his successes was scored in 1900, when the great Tod Sloan rode his Baldur to victory in the Ascot stakes.

It is understood that his stable will be retained and operated by his son.

SEWARD PREPARES FOR MEET

Y. M. C. A. Holds First Invitation Competition.

Seward is preparing for the first invitation track meet which will be held there under the sponsorship of the Y. M. C. A., Friday. There will be county and open events. E. H. Strieter, physical directer of the Seward Y. M. C. A. was in Lincoln Tuesday in conference with Coach Schulte. He took the Nebraska track mentor home with him to address the chamber of commerce Tuesday night.

Mr. Strieter has been directing the efforts of girl athletes desirious of winning sufficient points to get on the national humeral roll. Among those who have been showing ability in the high jump are Marguerite Feary, Mercedes Taege, Ruth Moyland, Frieda Weinke. Helen Bowles, a seventh grade pupil, has cleared the bar at four feet.

NEW YORK'S FLYING COP IS SUSPENDED BY A. A. U.

BOSTON, April 25.—Bob McAllister, New York's "flying cop" and the national 100-yard champion, has been suspended for six months by the New England association of the A. A. U. for "conduct unbecoming a gentleman."

DO YOU KNOW?

"Who won the championship at the last Olympic games?" E. L. F.

The team from the United States scored the most points and was unofficially accepted as the champion. No official team championship is recognized, however, under the present rule which provides that only individual event championships shall be awarded.

"What is the matter with George Sisler?" E. P. H.

Sisler pulled the muscles in his shoulder in one of the late games of the season last year and he was then stricken with an attack of the flu during the winter which left him with what doctors described as a sinus affection of the eye. It is understood that the eye trouble caused him to see double and made it impossible for him to take a throw or see the delivery of a pitcher at the plate. An operation may correct the ailment. It is not known definitely how long it will take him to recover or that he ever will be able to play again.

"Who was the greatest football player of all times?" FOOTBALL FAN.

It is just as difficult to name the greatest football player of all time as it is to name the greatest baseball player, the greatest statesman, etc. Opinions vary with the individuals. Jim Thorpe however, is generally regarded as the greatest. Dr. Charles Bucl, one of the Yale coaches, said last fall that he had never seen a football player who could do everything as well as George Owen, the Harvard captain and all-around star.

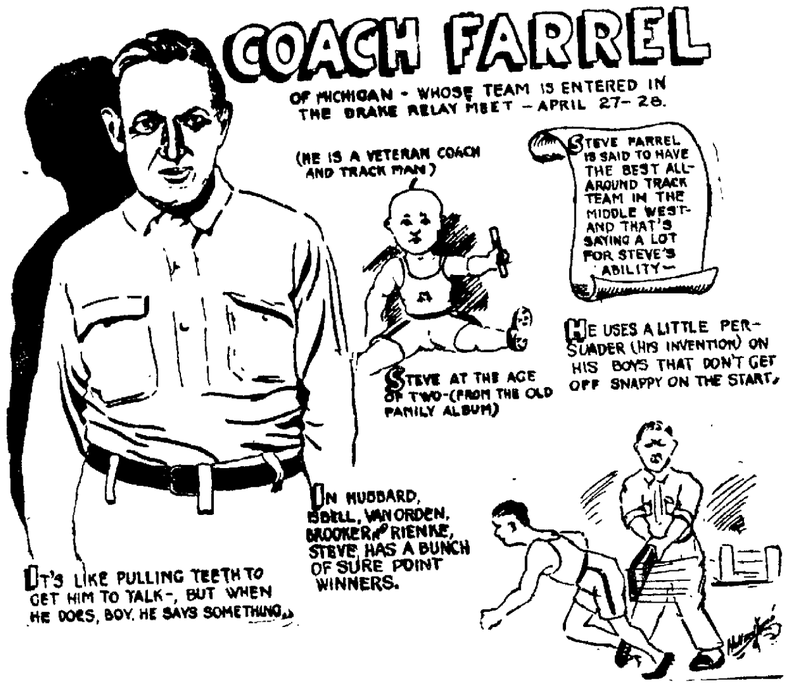
Nebraska Kennel Club Is Growing

OMAHA, April 25.—The Nebraska Kennel club, organized here recently, is growing steadily, according to announcement of L. C. Fauble, secretary-treasurer. At the time of organization there were ten members. Now there are eighty-six.

One of the big objects of the club is the holding of an American Kennel club show next fall or early winter and annually thereafter. Memberships are now held in Hickman, Norfolk, Valentine, Central City, Fremont and Taylor. A. H Klekamp of Omaha is president of the club.

Fairbury Loses to Western Leaguers

FAIRBURY, Neb., April 24.—Segrist's Fairbury Coyotes made their debut Tuesday afternoon against Wichita, the Western leaguers winning 6 to 3. Both teams played errorless baseball. The Coyotes used three pitchers, each allowing two runs to be made Wichita scored eight hits while the state leaguers counted for six. House, McLarry, Griffin, and McMullin worked for the Western leaguers while Harkins Lorich Hostetter and Beall formed the battery for the Fairbury nine.



COACH FARREL
(HE IS A VETERAN COACH AND TRACK MAN)
STEVE PARREL IS SAID TO HAVE THE BEST ALL-AROUND TRACK TEAM IN THE MIDDLE WEST-AND THAT'S SAYING A LOT FOR STEVE'S ABILITY—
STEVE AT THE AGE OF TWO-(FROM THE OLD FAMILY ALBUM)
HE USES A LITTLE PERSUADER (HIS INVENTION) ON HIS BOYS THAT DON'T GET OFF SNAPPY ON THE START.
IT'S LIKE PULLING TEETH TO GET HIM TO TALK-, BUT WHEN HE DOES, BOY, HE SAYS SOMETHING.
ON HUBBARD, DELL, VANORDEN, BROOKER, RIENKE, STEVE HAS A BUNCH OF SURE POINT WINNERS.

Steve Farrell, of Michigan, known at the Wolverine institution as "the grand ol dman of college athletics," will bring to Des Moines, April 27-28, one of the strongest track teams entered in the 14th annual Drake University relay meet.

Before going to Michigan, Farrell was located at Ohio State University, and had had wide experience prior to that.

Since his advent at Michigan a number of years ago, Farrell has developed a number of good track teams, but his 1923 squad undoubtedly is the strongest and best balanced that the Wolverines have had in many moons.

Among the start whom Farrell has developed are Hubbard, colored sprinter, hurdler and broad jumper, whom Farrell expects to set a new record in the broad jump before the season is over; Captain Burke, sprinter, Brooker and Prosser, pole vaulters; McElvain, and Smith high jumpers; Isbell, distance runner; Van Orden and Hindes shot-putters; and a number of others who have added materially to the strength of the 1923 Michigan team. All of the Michigan team except Hubbard and Brooker are expected to compete in the Drake meet.

Michigan walked off with first honors in the Western conference indoor meet recently, and the Wolverines are expected to make a fine showing at the Drake meet.

All roads will lend to the Drake stadium on April 27 and 28 when more than a thousand of the nation's best athletes will compete.

SOME RECORDS WHICH WALTER HAGEN HAS ANNEXED IN THE GOLFING WORLD

To get an idea of Walter Hagen's success on the golf links it is only necessary to glance at the array of titles which he has won since he started playing. The list which will be presented in this article does not include many minor titles which he has won. Hagen's articles, which will be of interest to every golfer, begin in the Journal May 1. He will cover all important matches on both sides of the Atlantic and these reports will appear exclusively in the Journal.

Hagen's bigger victories with the date and score by which he won them:

American National.

1914—At Midlothian C. C., 290 total.
1919—At Brae-Burn C. C., tied with Mike Brady at 301.

British National.

Professional Golfers' Association

1921—At Inwood C. C., defeated Jim Barnes in final round 3 and 2.

World's Scoring Record.

Metropolitan—New York.

1916—At Garden City.
1919—At North Shore.
1920—At Greenwich.

Western.

1915—At Blue Mound C. C.
1921—At Oakwood club.

WALTER HAGEN ONCE WAS A BALL PLAYER

Famous Golfer Who Will Contribute Daily Articles to Journal Was His Own Teacher—Vardon Recognized Merit.

Walter Hagen, holder of many golf titles, who will start writing daily articles about the great golf matches for the Journal May 1, has an interesting history.

Hagen was born in 1893 at Rochester, N. Y. He first attracted attention in baseball because of hard batting. In 1911 Hagen accepted a friend's invitation to hit a golf ball. He found the sensation was greater than making home runs and from that day baseball lost a star and golf found a champion.

Self taught, Hagen progressed rapidly on the links. He entered his first tournament in 1913—the national open championship at Brookline where Francis Ouimet, youthful Boston amateur, defeated Vardon and Ray, England's famous professionals, in a sensational play-off for the title at one time of the tournament, Hagen, the newcomer, led the great field of stars.

At Brookline Harry Vardon predicted a world reputation for the Rochester youth. Hagen made good Vardon's words with the greatest record in the history of golf.

LINE UP RETURN GAME WITH OMAHA WHITE SOX

A return game with Ernie Holmes' White Sox ball team of Omaha, will be played at Landis field Sunday afternoon by the Lincoln state league club. The Omaha team walloped the Links, 5 to 3, at Omaha last Sunday. A double bill may be put on. Mnaager Buck Beltzer stated, if some Lincoln team wants to tackle the Links.

Amateur Golfers Start Training

LONDON, April 25.—America's amateur golf team, here for the Walker cup matches and the British amateur championships, has started training at the Walton Heath club. British critics are enthused over Jess Sweetzer and George Rotan.

Follow the reports of these great golf matches in the sport pages of the Journal. They will be written by Walter Hagen, one of the most famous golfers. Mr. Hagen's first article appears May 1.

BEATRICE IS AFTER BIG CHARLEY GIBSON

Outfielder for Lincoln Club Last Season May Be Added to Blues' Roster—Cut Squad to Twenty Soon.

BEATRICE, Neb., April 25.—Two exhibition games are on the schedule for Manager Willett's Blues, one Thursday with the Geneva Independents and one with the Auburn team here next Sunday.

Three days were lost in training on account of the rain of Friday and Saturday. Two stiff workouts daily are to be staged from now until the opening of the season on May 4.

The squad of candidates will be cut down before the week-end, Manager Willetts announced last night. He does not expect to have over twenty men in camp by Saturday night.

Lindahl is New Member.

Lindahl, a first baseman with Sioux Falls in the Dakota league last season, is the newest member of the team. His record last season looks good to the fans and he is expected to make "Toot" Kirschner, last year's regular first sacker, hustle to hold his job.

Charles Gibson, outfielder with the Lincoln team last season, may be signed by the Beatrice club. He has written the local directors for a job and a contract has been forwarded him. With Bowman, Speaker and Gibson in the outfield, Beatrice would have one of thme best outfields in the loop.

Among the promising pitchers on the Blue hurling staff are Sullinger of St. Joe, Mo., R. M Hoffman of Taylor, Ky., J. Walsh of St Joe, Williams of Omaha, and Linder of Grant, Ia. Manager Willetts and "Dyke" Bowman expect to take a turn on the mound this season.

Unger Reports Again.

On the receiving end are Harold Unger, last years regular backstopper, Tony James of the Sioux Falls, Earl Gyon of Los Angeles and Marquis of Chicago. All are showing up well in the workouts.

Among the infielders showing promise are Herman Ander... Roy Neb., W. J. Quinn, and last season's regular shortstop, Chicago... Quinn, Los Angeles, Willy Kaiser, Wichita, Kas. and LaBarge, St. Louis.

ELMWOOD, Neb., April 24.—Elmwood high school has completed its baseball schedule for the coming season. Seven games have been arranged. Eagle lost to the local nine 11 to 6. The Louisville game was postponed on account of rain. Eight letter men are back in their regular berths on the team. The schedule:

April 28—Wesleyan Prep at Elmwood.
April 30—Ashland at Elmwood.
May 4—Louisville at Elmwood.
May 5—Eagle at Eagle.
May 11—Louisville at Louisville.
May 18—Wesleyan Prep at Wesleyan Prep.
May 25—Greenwood at Elmwood.

Tigers Win From Sunflower Farmers

MANHATTAN, Kan., April 24.—Missouri university defeated the Kansas Aggies 7 to 4 Tuesday afternoon in the first contest of a series of baseball games to be played here. Errors at critical times and the weakening of Yohn in the fifth frame when four Tiger runs crossed the plate lost the game. The Aggies scored two runs in the ninth but was unable to follow up the comeback. With three men on bases, two pinch hitters struck out.

Journal and Merchants Combine to Bring Back Bicycle Racing

Six Events Listed on Program for State Fair Track Saturday—Entries Must Be in Journal Office by Friday Evening.

If you own a bicycle and believe you can step on the pedals with the best of them, you'll have an opportunity of showing your prowess Saturday afternoon. The Journal and Lincoln business men believe the time is about ripe to decide the bicycle championships of the capital city. This idea comes at an appropriate time as national bicycle week is being celebrated next week.

There will be three classes of competition. Class A riders will include those entrants who are fifteen years old or over, Class B will take in riders from eleven to fourteen years old and Class C includes entrants from eight to ten years old.

There will be a 2-mile and quarter-mile race for the Class A starters; a 1-mile and quarter-mile for Class B and one-half and one-quarter mile paces for Class C.

All entrants must fill in the entry blank in another column of this page and have it in the Journal office by 6 p. m. Friday.

Firms who joined the Journal to put over the bicycle racing carnival are Lawlor's Sporting Goods company, Frazier Cycle company, Belote Cycle company and the Grone Cycle company.

Many prizse, a list of which will be announced later, will be offered the winners of the different events. There will be no admission charged spectators.

Professionals are barred from participating and only stock model wheels will be permitted to line up at the starter's tape. "This is for the boys of Lincoln and we don't want any 'ringers' run in on us." John Lawlor, one of the committee handling the details, said.

MICKEY WALKER AND KILBANE REINSTATED

New York License Committee Trying to Untangle Tentacles Which Muldoon Placed on Boxing Game.

By Henry L. Farrell.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Starting to unwind some of the tangles that Duke Muldoon slipped around the boxing game in New York, the state license committee has reinstated Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, and granted a license to Johnny Kilbane, featherweight king.

Walker was set down on the charge that he went thru "one of those things" in Buffalo some time ago with a sparring partner. His suspension did not take as expected, however, and he found plenty of business in the no-decision territory of other states.

May Meet Eugene Criqui.

Kilbane never had applied for a license to box in New York and the license committee figured that his syspension was illegal. With a license, Kilbane no doubt will be allowed to meet Eugene Criqui, the European champion, in a bout already scheduled for June 2 at the Polo grounds.

Muldoon said recently that a license would not give Kilbane any more liberty than he had been enjoying without one, and that he would suspend him again if he failed to meet Johnny Dundee. Muldoon, however, has been overruled two or three times by the new member of the commission and the same thing will result perhaps if he attempts to interfere again with Kilbane.

Johnny Wilson, the middleweight champion, having settled his difficulties with Tex Rickard, is back in good grace and he will be permitted to engage in as many bouts this summer as the promoters offer him.

Should Suspend Dempsey.

The license committee will not be as free handed in accepting challenges for champions as Muldoon has been in the past. Unless the committee allows Kilbane to ignore the Dundee challenge, it will have to suspend Jack Dempsey, who has been avoiding a legal challenge hurled at him months ago by Harry Wills. Dempsey has maintained that he is willing to fight Wills as soon as some promoter offers him a place and a purse; but in demanding $500,000 for his end, Dempsey is stopping the bout just as effectively as if he had come out with a flat refusal to accept the defi of the big colored fighter.

Gothenburg Coach Starts With Grades

GOTHENBERG, Neb., April 25.—Coach H. P. McCandless of the local high school believes in building for the future. He has organized the grade schools in different teams and a meet will be held Friday. Gothenburg high school won its first meet of the season from Cozad, 79 to 33.

"Good, clean athletics builds good, clean citizens," is Coach McCandless's contention.

FORM JAY-HUSKER GOLF CLUB

Kansas and Nebraska Golfers Organize at Fairbury Meeting.

SUPERIOR, Neb., April 25.—At a meeting in Fairbury Monday, a Kansas-Nebraska golf club was organized, called the "Jay-Husker" Golf association, and officers for the coming season were elected, Pawnee City securing the president and Fairbury the secretary. The cities in the club are Belleville, Washington and Marysville, Kas., and Pawnee City, Beatrice, Fairbury, Hebron and Superior, Neb. Games will be played this season on the circuit on a schedule to be announced later, and a big tournament will be held in Fairbury in September.

Vincent Astor, homeward bound on the Mauretania, said one evening:

"I like the English accent, I attended a dance last week on an English man-of-war, and as I arrived I saw some sailors putting the finishing touches to a lot of queer canvas contrivances.

"'What are these things you're building?' I asked a sailor.

"He might have answered that they were shelters for sitting out, but he put it more neatly than that.

"'Uts for 'uggin'm,' he said."—Los Angeles Times.

BROKE RULES OF THE CULT

YOUTHFUL BRIDES AND GROOMS VIOLATED TEACHINGS.

Husbands and Wives Did Not Live Separate—Deny That "King Benjamin" Contributed to Delinquency.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., April 25.—Spring came to Benton Harbor today but one of its familiar signs was missing.

"King" Benjamin Purnell, ruler of the House of David, lectures daily in the cult's park during spring, but he didn't appear today.

Purnell has been mysteriously missing since January 1, when court investigation and suits were brought against the organization.

The "king" impressed his audiences by drinking frequently from a golden goblet filled from a silver pitcher by one of the shiloh virgins.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., April 25.—A score of children, legally married under civil law, but whose religion teaches they must never live as man and wife, today told of the inner secrets of the House of David.

Boys, with long hair covering their shoulders and a white fuzz as the only proof they abided by the cult's orders against shaving, admitted to Judge Harry J. Dingman, conducting a "one man" grand jury investigation, that they were not celibrate husbands as required by the cult's teachings.

Girls, supposed virgin wives, confessed they did not observe the regulations of purity, either before or after marriage.

All, however, denied any wrong on the part of "King" Benjamin Purnell, ruler of the colony, who styles himself the "seventh angel; the young brother of Jesups Christ and the immortal prophet."

Instances of transgressions of the rules of the colony were declared by the witnesses to be isolated and not in any manner connected with its teachings or ceremonies.

Playing together in an outer room of the city hall council chamber, the boys and girls gave the appearance of any other normal group of school children, with the exception of queer costumes.

Boys Carry Bibles.

Boys carried Bibles under their arms and quoted texts to support teachings of their cult with the utmost facility. All wore long trousers, altho many appeared around fourteen years of age and were still in the awkward stage. Voices switched from high to low as they talked.

The entire group had been married in one wholesale ceremony last week. Altho applications for wedding licenses stated all were over the sixteen years required by Michigan law, several appearing before the inquisition have admitted more tender years. Andrew Dougherty, attorney general for Michigan, conducting the questioning of witnesses, is seeking to determine the truth of charges brought in civil suits that leaders of the colony, after using the girls for their own purposes, marry them to hand-picked husbands in order to protect against prosecution.

One girl witness was asked by Judge Dingeman:

"Have you abided by the rules and had no relations with your husband?"

"No," she answered, blushing. "My husband slipped into the dormitory at night."

"Did you break the rule of virginity before your marriage?"

"Yes."

"With more than one man?"

"With many."

Other girls who contended they had observed the rules may be examined by state physicians.

From the testimony, the following facts regarding the history and teachings of the house of David were learned by the investigators:

The colony, owning some of the richest farm land in Berrien county, has its headquarters on the outskirts of Benton Harbor.

Must Be No Children.

The house of David code has provided for marriages among its children since 1910, but decrees that until the ingathering of the colony from the four corners of the world is complete and the blood of the children of Israel is cleansed of inherited sin, there must be no marital relations—no children.

As far as known, children have never been born in the colony. Members of the cult supposed to have transgressed these regulations were publicly banished.

Most of the time of the colony workers is spent on the large farms, which produce most of the income for the upkeep of the organization.

The house of David also owns High school a lumber camp in Lake Michigan which has been a fruitful source of revenue. When punished, some members are sent to the island.

A baseball team, which, despite whiskers and long hair, is one of the crack amateur clubs of the mid-west, also produces considerable money for the upkeep of the colony.

All revenue goes to the colony leaders, the "seven pillars," and the workers take no wages—being given only their board and lodging.

John R. Tucker, looking more like a girl with hair down his back in two braids, than his child wife, Rosa, stoutly defended the name of Benjamin. John said he was nineteen, but his chin didn't even show fuzz. Rosa claimed she was seventeen, but school records show she is fifteen.

KING GEORGE IS HONEST.

LONDON—(By Mail.) — King George has received a real certificate of honesty. Convinced that he will never take up counterfeiting, officials of the Laverstoke paper mills in Hampshire have invited him and the queen to be the first persons in the two hundred years of existence to inspect the mills and see how bank notes paper is made. Heretofore no one outside the family of the proprietors has been let into the secret

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: In last night's paper the girl that signed her name discouraged was so like myself in nature I also wanted to write. I love nature and all out of doors and as my parents both died when I was small and I was offly homely I lived a good share of the time in the woods alone as no one seemed to care about me. I started to work at the age of twelve and am still working but not so verry young. But here is my trouble. I have never gone to school. I study evenings but it is so hard for me to learn my brain seems to be petrifyed to anything except painting ceanery. That is the only easy thing for me to learn and that I work at evenings. Sometimes I think I will crawl out of my garet home and mix with people but I soon crawl back again. I only care to be with nice refined people. So last winter I attended a party and was asked to read a slip of paper. Well of all the stoping and stamering and there is no poppy that grows over there that was redder than I. So like the ground hog I crawled back for another year. As I did not care to meet one that was at the party. As I have grown real nice looking no one would think me so dum and so hard to learn. I amagine I am about a third grader. Can you think of anything that would or will help a petrifyed mind? Thanking you in advance and hoping you know of some books or something. Yours truly—Discouraged the second.

A. If you are working and don't spend much of your money on vanities, I should think you would have some for a private tutor. Probably you could secure a university student who has some experience in teaching or maybe some of the city teachers would like to earn some outside money. This would be much better than trying to study alone.

You are further advanced than third grade if you can read this column and write the letter you have.

Dear Mary Gordon: I'm not coming to you for advice or with such a terrible problem as so many do like that boy "Worried." I don't see a thing in the world for him to be worried about. I think that girl with so much money (which he mentioned so much) that proposed to him must be an old maid that no one would have, so had to ask someone to take her. Honestly! I laughed so when I read that. Talk about leap year!

As for her religion. I don't think she ever had any to be so ready to give it up. Religious people don't do such things. Oh! I'm getting too critical. When I get started I can't stop. Women like. Tut! Tut!

Like Remle I wonder just how one will tell the right mate when you meet the said one when they all talk, act and love almost alike.

This kissing question always puzzled me. You say a boy don't respect a girl that lets any boy kiss her. Well! Why does a boy never ask a girl for a date the second time that won't allow such things? Now you will say that a boy will ask them again but on an average the boys won't—at least the ones in my town don't. They say your not a sport or too dead to go with. Really are such boys worth while? Is it the truth that all the boys in this wide world are like this? Now, I've begged my statement.

I'm not going to tell my age because you would all be surprised. I may write again. Thank you.—K. K.

A. If all the "nice" girls in town would declare a boycott on boys who insist on too much "petting," the boys would soon come round. Why don't you start an anti-petting club among your girl friends?

Glad to have you come again.

Dear Mary Gordon: After reading "Brute's" letter I felt very angry. I don't see why we women have to be made to be man's lower. It seems that it is all right for a young man to "sow wild oats" but when a woman tries anything, she is then and there branded as a wretch. The men who sow their wild oats always regret it when it is two late, so I don't see why elders always say "Oh they always sow their wild oats." Men encourage women to do immoral things yet afterwards they have nothing more to do with the girl. They use unsuspecting girls to sow their wild oats on, and then brand them as brazen jezebels.

I don't see why we women have to be the plaything of man who ropes us into doing his wishes and then casts us down.

A man always expects the woman he marries to be pure and noble yet he is vile and sinful.

The children of men who sow "wild oats always suffer" yet a man marries a pure girl because he wants his children to be healthy and normal.

Man is the cause of woman's downfall and then he is the first to brand her.

It's a funny thing these men all want their wives and sisters to be so pure, and they always see to it that a man who corrupts their wifes or sisters "gets his," yet they are the cause of other men's wives and sisters downfalls.

I thru with man who plays women such tricks. Let me warn you girls keep away form these fickle lovers who leave you in the lurch.—An Experienced One.

P. S. What are your views Mary.

A. We want a single standard of morality instead of a double standard of immorality, don't we? And so we women must guard our thoughts and actions and demand of men, so far as is possible, what they demand of us.

No woman has to be the "plaything of man." Once in a while a girl is deliberately tricked but not often. I think. Most girls who fall do so with the disregarded warnings and teachings of their elders ringing in their ears.

Sweet Sixteen: Your action was correct. I wouldn't apologize for taking the right stand. I believe a card for his birthday might be sufficient and might cause him to write again, if he cares to.

GIRL CHOOSES LOVING CARE

FOSTER MOTHER WINS DECISION OF BEATRICE NUTTALL.

Mother of Illegitimate Child Heartbroken When Girl Decides She Will Live With Only Mother She Ever Knew.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Loving care of a foster mother today proved a stronger tie than flesh and blood relationship when Beatrice Childs Nuttal, twelve, chose to live with the woman who reared her rather than the mother who bore her.

The pretty twelve-year-old girl came into the court room of Judge Joseph B. David and said she desired to continue to live with Mrs. James Nuttall, wife of a Waukegan postal clerk, who adopted her when she was a week old.

Mrs. James Morris, who twelve years ago became the mother of the illegitimate child in Sterling, Ill., had brought suit to recover custody of Beatrice. She said the baby was snatched from her side while she was lying unconscious following its birth.

"I like the nice lady who you say is my real mother, but I want to continue to live with the only regular mama I ever knew." Beatrice said after the story of her birth had been revealed to her for the first time.

Judge David, who called Judge Claire Edwards to sit with him in deciding the difficult case, had asked that the girl's wishes be consulted before a definite ruling is made. They were expected to rule within a few days on which mother will be given custody o fthe child.

Mrs. Morris was heartbroken when informed of the girl's decision.

"I have hunted for Beatrice for twelve years over eight states," she said.

"She was never adopted with my consent. When the baby was born my family felt the disgrace keenly. I was banished from my home. I was delirious for three days after Beatrice's birth, and during that time she was given to a children's home. Every one wanted me to die. I never consented to her adoption."

The mother tearfully told of her long search thru birth and adoption records in many cities before she finally located her child in Waukegan. The Nuttalls introduced her to her own child as an "old friend and altho a strong attachment developed in the child for her real mother, until the court proceedings, Beatrice never knew the facts.

"I wasn't a bad girl," Mrs. Morris said. "My child's father, a relative by marriage, was brought to my parents' home to live with us. I was only 17. As soon as I recovered after the baby's birth, we were married in order to give Beatrice a name."

WANT WOMEN ON PAPERS.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Ruth Hale, feminist and widely experienced newspaper woman, critic and author, has announced that her next objective in life is to break down the prejudice against women on the news and editorial staffs of newspapers. Miss Hale, who is the founder and the president of the Lucy Stone league, organized to prove that women may keep their own names after marriage, is one of the chief speakers on the program of the biennial convention of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary and professional fraternity for women in journalism, at Norman, Okla., April 26-28.

DUBLIN, April 25.—The three insurgents who battled free state forces for three days in a cave above the sea in the north of Kerry, were executed at Tralee today.

They were Richard Hatheway, James McEnery and John Greaney.

Hatheway is said to have deserted to the insurgents from the British black and tans.

Young Married Women Need Mother's Advice-

MRS. PEARL STEELE
203 MAIN ST., WARRENSBURG, MO.

A GREAT many women after childbirth get up too soon and, too weak to care for the child and perform their household duties, often bring on serious derangements.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid tonic to take at this time; it is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs, and can be taken in safety by nursing mothers. Thousands of mothers advise their daughters to take this grand old root and herb medicine for such conditions because of their own favorable experience with it.

Following We Publish an Interesting Letter From Mrs. Steele of Warrensburg, Which Should Interest Every Mother in the Land:

WARRENSBURG, MO.—"When my second child was born I got up too soon as my mother wasn't able to do for me. I could not stand on my feet without being dizzy and my back would ache so badly that I would have to lie down at times through the day. My mother had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had a bottle of it at the time so she begged me to take it which I did and I cannot tell you how much better I felt after taking it. Then a year later my husband got back from overseas and we went to keeping house by ourselves and I got all run down again. I couldn't work long at a time but would have to sit down and rest. My husband kept begging me to take the Vegetable Compound again so I have done so. I recommend it when I can as I know it is good for women's troubles and I thought you might like to know what it has done for me."—MRS. PEARL M. STEELE, 203 Main St., Warrensburg, Mo.

Another Interesting Case

CHESTER, PA.—"I was all run-down and in a weak condition when I married. I had many of the troubles women often have and the birth of my children left me almost a wreck. One day my brother-in-law was visiting us and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I said, 'It's no use, as nothing does me any good.' He asked me if I would take if he would buy it, and to please him I said, 'Yes.' He bought me three bottles before there was a change, so you see I was pretty badly off. I couldn't do any work before this, and kept a girl. I got so well I did my own work and later had more children and kept my good health. I do all my work and take in sewing too, and am raising plants for Memorial Day. I feel younger than I did at twenty because I have good health."—MRS. L. A. LAMEY, 1125 Madison St., Chester, Pa.

VOTED WRONG AND ADMIT IT

MEMBERS OF HOUSE KNEW NOT WHAT THEY DID.

Killing of Bill to Abolish an Exemption or So From State Constitution, Accepted as Bad Business.

The house reconsidered the killing of S. F. 24, bill chasing certain exemptions from the constitution, and put it back on third reading. It will again face the final hurdle on Thursday.

"We know not what we did," said Big Bill" Lundy.

It fell by the wayside Tuesday because it failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote. It passed the senate 27 to 2. The house vote was 54 to 34. Representative Lamb called attention to the total house and senate count as being 81 to 36. And yet it failed. He also cited the vote on H. R. 111, putting intangibles back on a full value basis for purposes of taxation. That measure received 100 affirmative votes as against 18 votes in the negative and yet it died. The house vote was 84 to 1. The senate killed 16 to 17.

The vote to reconsider the slaughter of S. F. 24 was 62 to 35. It proposes a constitutional amendment to be submitted to referendum vote. The people to decide whether or not they care longer to exempt $200 of household goods, warrants, bonds and other evidences of debt of the state or any of its governmental subdivisions and municipally owned utilities

Friends of the measure contend that tax exemptions are responsible for high taxes and that here is a chance to help the farmer out from under his burden. Democrats have been urging economy. In this instance, they were split fifty-fifty. They stood 19 for and 19 against. House republicans were responsible for the vote to reconsider. They stood 43 for and 16 against.

H. R. 365, putting teeth in the law intended to prevent practitioners of dentistry, medicine and certain of the healing arts from operating with out a license or when license has been revoked, was under discussion when noon adjournment was taken. The bill declares such practice to be unlawful and a nuisance which may be abated thru injunction proceedings. Opponents argued that it is vicious and takes away the right to a trial by jury.

MOVE TO KILL BRYAN STRING

DEMOCRATIC MEMBER WOULD PUT THEM ON SHELF.

Beushausen Fails in Attempt to Pronounce Death Warrant on House Bills in Hands of Standing Groups.

Representative Beushausen, democrat, offered a motion Wednesday to kill all house bills now in the hands of standing committees. This would include the four and forty bills of Governor Bryan introduced in support of his key bill, long diseased. When the key was chloroformed, the democrats fought against the scattering of the so-called supporters among so-called hostile standing groups. Members of the minority wanted to mourn alone with their dead. The Beushausen motion was smothered. This was not, however, because of any value attached to the Bryan string. For these bills, from all appearances, are cold and stiff.

Representative Dysart explained that time enough to kill remaining bills will be when adjournment day arrives. Nothing, he said, can be gained by any other sort of action.

The house adopted the conference committee report on H. R. 288, appropriating $10,000 for the eradication of scabies among cattle. The vote was 69 to 17. Fourteen democrats and three republicans voted against this comfort measure to clear cows and calves of the itch. The following bills were passed:

H. F. 697, b committee on irrigation—Authorizes creation of water power districts in state on unit plan, urban and rural. Gives water users right to take advantage of and to develop their own resources. The vote, 67 to 15.

H. R. 721, by Governor Bryan by request—Companion to bill providing for establishment of municipal court in Lincoln. Substitutes municipal judge for justices of peace and police judge. The vote, 91 to 1.

H. R. 722, by Governor Bryan by request—Provides that limited liability of two-thirds capital stock of corporations shall not apply to liabilities incurred thru federal intermediate credit bank recently established in Omaha.

CAN'T GET VESSEL TO RETURN HOME

Miss Emily McCoy

Fifteen years ago Miss Emily McCoy came to America to learn trained nursing, so as to care for her native people in Pitcairn island, a lonely little land in the South seas where there is no physician. Her father is chief of the island. She has heard from his once in six years. For the last few years she has been making every endeavor to return home but vessels touch at the island years apart and the British government which sends warships there once a year, will not permit her to go home on board a war vessel.

WIFE INTERFERED WITH PLANS

College Student Says Abandonment Charges Hurt Career.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., April 25.—Matrimony and charges of wife abandonment are interfering with his for a college education, Lewis Weymiller, twenty-two, Waukon, Ia., University of Minnesota student testified in his divorce suit here.

Mrs. Weymiller, who is living with her parents at Waukon, recently obtained a conviction against her husband for abandonment. Weymiller has appealed the case. He claims the abandonment charge caused him to be ostracised by his class mates and forced him to withdraw as a candidate for president of the senior class. Mrs. Weymiller is contesting the suit.

GOVERNOR BRYAN WAITING

Watching What Effect Packers May Have Upon Democratic Members of Legislature.

"I am waiting with great interest," said Governor Bryan Wednesday "to see if the packers will have more influence than taxpayers with democratic members of the legislature."

The governor made this statement when informed that Representative Osterman, democrat, was at that moment speaking in the house in favor of an appropriation of $285,000 of state funds for eradication of tuberculosis.

SPEAK ENGLISH FOR GAY TIME.

PANAMA.—(By Mail.) — "Any girl who speaks English can have a wonderful time in Maracaibo." Is the tidings brought by Miss Cecilia Cooke, a resident of the Venezuelan metropolis, recently arrived in Panama with her father, who came to be treated in Panama hospital. "Since the oil companies began to work on a big scale in Venezuela," she explained, "there are lots and lots of young engineers and managers living around Maracaibo. Whenever they have a holiday or a week end they come into Maracaibo."

William R. Allen, former lieutenant governor of Montana, is among the men named in a secret indictment returned by the county grand jury at Boston charging conspiracy to defraud stock-holders of the Boston and Montana corporation and its subsidiary companies.

CLAIMS WAR BARS RIGHTS

SUPREME COURT CALLED TO DECIDE DISPUTED POINT.

Direct Heirs of Nebraska Man Insist Declaration of War With Germany Did Not Cut Them Out of Property.

The supreme court is called upon to decide wether Judge Tewell of Cheyenne county was wrong when he held that the declaration of war with Germany did not abrogate the treaty made in 1828 with Prussia whereby residents of that country were given a reasonable time to make proof of heirship to property in America and to dispose of the same where the laws of the state do not permit non-resident aliens to hold real estate.

Judge Tewell also held that the treaty abrogates that law of Nebraska which prohibits non-resident aliens from inheriting when they are residents of a country with which such a treaty as named has been negotiated. He also said that because six years elapsed from the time the owner of the property died before the German heirs made their claims for it could not be held to be outside of the "reasonable time" which the law says they may have to make such claims, when it is considered that communication was so thoroly interrupted by the war.

The 320 acres of land in Cheyenne county that Julius Quandt, recluse, owned is the property at stake. His wife died on the first anniversary of their wedding, and Quandt left all of his relatives in Missouri, went out to the farthest frontier and there located a homestead and a tree claim, living alone in a dugout for years.

After his death the sons and daughters of a deceased cousin, Henry Reinkle, living in Cole county, Mo., claimed the estate as the nearest of kin. A brother migrated years ago to Brazil, and was not found. German heirs are the children of deceased brothers and children, and they get the land under the decree of Judge Tewell.

LOS ANGELES A "BOOB TOWN."

LOS ANGELES, April 25.—Los Angeles has been called a boob town by one of New York's leading playwrights. Channing Pollock, whose latest drama, "The Fool," received a frosty reception when it opened here and subsequently knocked Manhattan audiences out of their seats, considers Los Angeles, the film capital of the world and several other things, a mere Babbitt-hutch. "Yes," said Mr. Pollock, in a recent interview, "Los Angeles is a boob town. If a play fails there it is certain to succeed in civilized centers. And vice versa."

WALT MASON

The Prairie.

Where once the herds of bison spread for seven leagues or three, and shook the prairie with their tread, as tempests shake the sea, the farmer, keen to earn his bread, is busy as can be. Where once the Indian would rouse the echoes with his whoop, the farmers push their gleaming plows, an earnest, toilsome troop, and hired men calmly milk the cows, and feed the swine their soup. I often hear old boys lament the happy, golden days, when all their shining hours were spent in shooting other jays, when no one tried to earn a cent by growing corn or maize. The old boy always views with scorn the humdrum life we lead; we go forth in the golden morn to sow our nutmeg seed, when we should chase, with hound and horn, until a bison's treed. And yet one farmer with a hoe is better than a ton of gents who do not plow or sow or make a grindstone run, who only strike to carve a row of notches on a gun. The hired man doing useful chores, who gives the hens their swill, repairs the roof and cellar doors, and plows the sunlit hill, is better far than all the bores who only hunt and kill. Where once the herds of bison tramped clear to the prairie's rim, now handsome dwellings may be lamped by one who has a glim: where once the unwashed savage camped we sing our evening hymn.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

SENATE ADDS MORE MONEY

APPROPRIATIONS NEARLY ONE MILLION MORE.

Gives $285,000 for Bovine Tuberculosis and $100,000 for Yankton Bridge and Cuts Wages.

The senate disposed of the maintenance bill, H. R. 672, Tuesday afternoon at one sitting, and ordered it advanced to third reading with senate amendments engrossed. When the roll was called on this motion Fries, Larkin, Osborne and Thielen alone voted in the negative.

Outside of federal funds and cash not raised by taxation the bill as it came to the senate appropriated $15,206,653. The senate committee increased this to $15,655,209. The committee of the whole added $83,890, making a total of $15,739,099. Some deduct $1,500,000 from this for funds which will be paid out of general revenue receipts.

In addition the bill carried $5,311,579 of federal and cash fees, making a grand total of $21,050,678 as it will pass the senate. This is $930,129 more than the bill carried when it left the house.

The only material change in the senate committee amendments was the addition of $100,000 to the state aid bridge appropriation which had been left at $200,000. Reifenrath moved to increase this to $300,000 for the purpose of permitting the department of public works to aid in building an approach to the proposed bridge at Yankton. Barr explained his vote on this question by stating that he understood toll was to be charged, and in his opinion those who collect the toll should pay for the approach to the bridge.

Others voted for the increase on the ground that they had passed a bill to permit the bridge fund to be drawn upon for this purpose and that such an investment would be a good one for the state.

The roll call on the Reifenrath amendment resulted:

Nay: Banning, Barr, Bliss, Fries, Johnson, Meacham, Purcell, Reed, Rickard, Smrha, Wiltse, Wilkins, Warner—13.

Tomek did not vote tho present. Hastings, Jillian and Saunders were absent.

Later the discovery was made that the finance committee had overlooked wages in the department of public works and bureau of irrigation. They were reduced by the committee of the whole the same amount the committee had applied to wages in other departments and thruout the statehouse, the total reduction on the two departments being $16,000.

McGowan started a fight on reduction of state normal appropriations by moving an increase for the Wayne school.

As a result the standing committee cut was adopted. It makes the following reductions in the house bill: Wayne, from $325,000 to $305,000; Peru, $300,000 to $280,000; Kearney, $370,000 to $348,000; Chadron, $275,000 to $258,000.

In regard to salaries in one department in the statehouse, Reed said there was a 25 per cent increase in 1919 and the 10 per cent decrease now leaves a net increase of 15 per cent over wages paid four years ago. Only five senators voted to increase the pay to that allowed by the house.

Larkin of Douglas desired the $60,000 item for law enforcement reduced to $30,000. Chambers of Douglas proposed to cut it all out. It was explained this item was formerly $75,000 and that the committee had cut it below the recommendation of both governors. The item was not changed.

McGowan asked that the $10,000 for the governor's mansion be cut to $4,500. Others opposed a reduction on the ground that it would do no harm, for if the money is not spent for the purposes set forth in the bill it will revert to the treasury. Others said the governor desired that amount and the courtesy should be allowed. It was stated that this item is nearly double the amount allowed two years ago. McGowan said the mansion had been repaired and would need little repairing in the next two years. No change was made in this item. Those who voted for a reduction were Behrens, Fries, McGowan, Shellenbarger, Smrha, Sturdevant and Warner.

The finance committee let court reporters in on expense accounts with an item of $1,500 to repay them when they are out of their districts.

HOSTILITY TO MAD DANCERS

Officials Indicate Opposition to Endurance Tests If Pulled Off by Young People Here.

A resolution passed by the Lincoln woman's club asking the city council to forbid the non-stop dance craze which promises to invade Lincoln was submitted at the Tuesday afternoon session. The resolution follows:

"Whereas, as we look upon the present endurance dance craze which has invaded Lincoln, with extreme disfavor, as it has proven elsewhere not only demoralizing to the young people, but endangering health and even life of those participating in it

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Lincoln Woman's club respectfully asks the city commission to forbid such orgies."

While the council referred the resolution to the city legal department for more light it went far enough to indicate that it did not approve of such endurance tests. It was suggested that it might be possible to amend the dancing ordinance to cut down the number of hours if this would be effective in forbidding endurance dancing stunts.

JEWS RAISE MONEY FOR THE NEW ZION

One thousand dollars for the restoration of Palestine was raised Tuesday evening at a meeting of a hundred and fifty Lincoln Jews at the Lincoln hotel The money will be sent to Omaha Wednesday by a local delegation. Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the world Zionist organization, is to speak there at that time.

Rabbi Samuel Sale of St. Louis was the principal speaker at the Tuesday evening meeting. Others were Rabbi F. Ciechanowitz of Lumsk, Poland, and M. J. Slonim of St. Louis, a national field secretary. Mr. Slonim said he expects to more than double the one thousand dollars by the time the delegation goes.

"The divine moment has come," said Rabbi Sale. "It is now an historic possibility for the Jews to get their promised land. It must be an historic fact, or the finger of history will point to them in scorn. It will be the fulfillment of our own mission to mankind."

The movement will be the greatest of all modern movements, as it is necessary for the Jew to keep his own individuality for the good of mankind, to carry on those benefits he has perpetuated in the past. American Jews seem to do nothing for Zion but pray, while what is needed is money. It is easier to pray than pay. Jews will not be forced to go, but are yearning to go from the lands of oppression.

The delegation is composed of Rabbi Jacob Singer, C. Mozer, S. L. Shostak, Louis B. Finkelstein, and Max Katleman. They have been requested by Omaha Jews to bring Governor Bryan and Chancellor Avery to the session.

ENGINEERS NIGHT THURSDAY

State University Students Are to Stage Their Annual Exhibit at 7:30 p. m.

The twenty-eighth annual engineer's night will take place Thursday at 7:00 p. m. on the city campus of the university. No effort has been spared to make the 1923 engineer's night, the biggest and best ever, the engineers declare.

The annual parade will start so that it will be downtown at noon, Thursday. There will be a float from every department. Displays have been arranged in two windows downtown.

All of the laboratories in chemistry hall will be open, including the general chemistry laboratory, organic and inorganic laboratory, physical and analytical laboratories and an industrial research laboratory. In the lecture room will ben seen a miniature volcano, thermite test, liquid carbon dioxide, and moving pictures of industrial processes.

The civil engineering department will have several displays, such as a model dam. The display of surveying and drafting instruments will be housed in the armory. The materials testing laboratory will be in full operation. Here various types of building materials, such as concrete, iron rods, beams, and "Nebraska state capitol" stone, are tested. Some machines are used for testing the brick or concrete which is used in building our roads and pavements.

On the first floor of the mechanical engineering building will be found the power laboratory, with a model power plant in operation. A steam engine is being made in the machine tool laboratory. At 8:30 p. m., in the foundry laboratory, there will be one ton of iron poured, which will be used in machines built by the students. Besides these laboratories, will be found the pattern laboratory, fuel and lubricant laboratory, metallography laboratory, and others.

In the power laboratory of the electrical building, there will be tests carried on of electrical machinery, insulation tests, and display of low voltage welding transformers. Both automatic an manually operated telephone switchboards will be on display. The broadcasting station, WFAV of the University of Nebraska, will be open to inspection. A display of all kinds of electrical appliances will be in the armory. A radio concert will be received from 9 to 10 p. m. in the large chapel.

SCHOOLS PREPARE TO CLOSE

MAN ARRESTED FOR NEW YORK POLICE

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., April 24.—John Bekas, American born Greek, was arrested today on an order from the New York police for the alleged theft of $1,300 from an uncle by whom he had been employed in a confectionery business. It is alleged that he was sent one day in March to the bank to deposit the amount named. He state that he placed the money in an overcoat pocket, went to the bank, and found his pocket empty when in there. Fear of his uncle, he said led to his disappearance.

Local Greeks state that he had wired them for funds from Chicago on his way here. Bekas had worked here several years before going to New York, and those by whom he has been employed before and since going to New York express the utmost confidence in the young man's story.

COMPANY I HAS FESTIVAL

Two Hundred Couples Attend Entertainment at the City Auditorium Tuesday Night.

The spring festival staged by company I of the 134th regiment of infantry, Nebraska national guard, was held at the city auditorium Tuesday night. Two hundred couples visited the hall during the course of the evening. Favors and gifts were presented to those attending.

The festival was held with a view to getting the public better acquainted with the personnel of the national guard, and to put a best foot in the company's best hand. Those who attended expressed their pleasure and the [illegible] Music was furnished by the Veterans of Foreign Wars orchestra.

FELIX NEWTON IS NOW FREE

Former Instructor in the University of Nebraska Gets Out of Russian Prison

E. Okey of Lincoln that he is out of prison again. The letter is dated April 2. Mr. Okey and Mr. Newton have corresponded regularly since January and the Lincoln man received word some time ago that his friend had been imprisoned, with a promise that full particulars would be sent. The letter with particulars must have been waylaid by Russian authorities, Mr. Okey believes.

"It is a great treat to be a free bird, but not in Russia," reads the letter received. "I feel that I cannot go further without help from friends, I feel broken in spirit and in pocket. It is the first time that I must look for help from friends in the United States.

Anyone who might wish to send him aid should do so by sending American dollars thru a bank. Billionaires are the rule in his land, since a poor man will take a billion rubles to support his family for a month or so, not counting clothing or school fees. A pound of white flour is worth a million.

Mr. Okey and other Lincoln friends have sent clippings from The Journal, magazines and other papers, so that Mr. Newton has been able to keep up with American conditions, and with the affairs of Lincoln. He expressed the opinion that Charles Bryan will be the next senator from Nebraska, but that he is sure "Power and Tower Allen is fighting him to beat the band."

IDENTITY OF GIRLS BEATEN UNKNOWN

Names of Three Grand Island Misses Who Aroused Farmers Near Doniphan by Their Cries Still a Mystery.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., April 24.—Local police are still trying to ascertain the identity of three Grand Island girls, who aroused a farmer southeast of Doniphan Saturday night by their cries and were found badly beaten up and dishevled. They declared that two traveling men, believed by them to be from Omaha, but whose names they did not know, had attacked them. They state they were on their way to Hastings to attend a dance. One of the girls had a severe cut over the eye and another had a tooth knocked out. First aid was given at Doniphan where the girls refused to divulge their names.

FREMONT PHYSICIAN IS DEAD

FREMONT, Neb., April 24.—Dr. George H. Haslam, aged about fifty, prominent surgeon of Fremont for the past thirty years, died suddenly at his office about 6:45 Tuesday night of heart failure. Two other physicians in the same building were summoned but their efforts were of no avail. Doctor Haslam gained a statewide reputation as a member of the Nebraska medical association in addition to being local physician for the Union Pacific, Northwestern and Burlington railroads.

With the Northwestern he had charge of the Norfolk-Omaha division. He was born in England, was educated in universities of Europe. When the world war broke out Doctor Haslam was in Zurich, Switzerland, in medical research work. His death comes as a sudden shock as he had apparently been enjoying unusually good health.

MAN INJURED IN A FALL

Solomon Van Busch Suffers Cracked Ribs From Tumble on Track in Freight Yards.

Solomon Van Busch, twenty-seven, 1509 South Third, suffered two fractured ribs and minor injuries about the body when he fell in the Burlington freight yards at 11 a. m. Tuesday. He caught a foot in a rail and fell onto the opposite rail, according to yard employes. No moving trains or cars were near him. He was taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital in Castle, Roper & Matthews' ambulance. Mr. Van Busch is employed as a coal hauler by the Whitebreast Coal company.

MERE MENTION

P. R. Dreith, 921 South Sixth, was arrested Tuesday by Officer Gross on charge of speeding. He is booked to appear in police court at 9 a. m. Wednesday.

Firemen received an alarm early Tuesday afternoon that there was a fire at Eleventh and Sumner streets. A run was made to that intersection but no blaze could be located.

The last meeting of the Lancaster Bar association will be held May 4 at the Grand hotel, and will be in the form of an entertainment for the ladies. An election of officers for the ensuing year will also take place.

The home of Jacob Mohr, 129 E, was raided late Tuesday afternoon. A copper still and four quarts of moonshine were seized. Mr. Mohr was arrested and taken to the police station. He is charged with illegal possession of intoxicating liquor. State Sheriff Carroll, Deputy Benton, Constable Vohnes and Captain of Detectives Anderson staged the raid.

Mrs. Julia N. Becker filed suit Tuesday afternoon in district court against Harry J. Becker, asking a divorce, alimony, and custody of her three children. It is alleged in the petition that the husband has turned his wife and been guilty of failure to provide. The petition states that the husband has accumulated property to the extent of $50,000 and over. They were married in Lincoln December 20, 1908.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW

George A Matlock who served as city salesman and superintendent of job stock with the Western Newspaper Union here for three years has been promoted to the management of the Fort Wayne, Ind., office of the organization.

The Seattle Times of recent date carries a feature story characterizing Rev. Cleveland Kleihauer, former Lincoln man as "the happiest man in Seattle." Rev. Mr. Kleihauer is now pastor of the university Christian church of that city. The article states that he recently refused a lucrative other to serve in the east because he is contented and satisfied with the university and the Seattle people

The annual dinner dance of the Lincoln Sanitarium alumni in honor of this year's graduating class was held at the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening. The party was composed of about forty couples. The tables were grouped at one end of the ball room and were decorated with bouquets of sweet peas and roses and colored candlesticks. Streamers of vari-colored crepe paper were hung from the walls and balconies. Head bands were given to the ladies as favors and horns to the men.

Fred Morrell, government district forester of Missoula, Mont., will arrive in Lincoln Wednesday and will be the guest of his sisters, Mrs. T. V. Goodrich and Miss Minnie Morrell, 1219 South Twenty-seventh.

Mrs. Rosalie Crabtree of Lincoln was elected vice-president of the district convention of the Rebekahs held at Milford recently. The assembly took a silver offering at this meeting which was sent to the older residents of the I. O. O. F. home at York.

SIDE TALKS

(By Ruth Cameron.)

Judging by Appearances.

"It pays to dress well," said the Authorman's wife a trifle sententiously. "People almost always judge one by one's appearances."

The Smoker of the Corncob.

"I doubt it—but even then the one hundredth time might be disastrous." And the cynic laughed. "I remember the story, which happens to be true, of the manager of a very fashionable summer hotel who was told by his clerk that a queer old cove was smoking a corncob pipe on the piazza and refused to leave, altho he had been courteously informed that the piazza was for the use of the guests. The manager promptly took charge of the matter himself and ordered the intruder off, rather peremptorily. The intruder went—in a $9,000 car that his chauffeur had been taking around to the garage. The manager made inquiries and found out that the man was a rather eccentric millionaire, who, as it happened, owned a big block of stock in that very hotel."

"Well, that was only one case in a hundred, as I said," interjected the Authorman's wife.

"And a rather disastrous one for the manager," added the Cynic, mildly. "As a matter of fact, I know of another case that happened to a friend of mine. He invested a lot in a house which he hoped to sell at profit, but he couldn't seem to sell it, and the house became a white elephant on his hands.

Another Bad Guess.

"The other day he was working about the place when some people drove up in a flivver. A woman who was anything but well dressed stepped out and asked to see the house. The owner wants $12,000 for the house—wants it in cash because he thinks it's a bargain at that price, and besides he needs the money. He looked at the woman and saw, among other things, that her coat was old and her gloves shabby. So he told her that it was a very expensive house. She made rather a sharp retort to that, at which my friend, whose experience with the house has not improved his disposition, told her bluntly that the house cost more than she could afford to pay. He judged by appearances."

The Cynic stopped and smiled.

"The woman was the wife of one of the biggest manufacturers in the city, so my friend learned afterward. She had borrowed the coat and gloves when a friend whom she was visiting suggested that they take a ride."

"Why, the tale carries its own moral. Still, if you insist, I'd put it this way. Dress yourself as well as you choose and get all you need out of people who do judge by appearances. But, as far as your own reactions are concerned, remember that in this country appearances come so cheap that the only men who can afford to be without them [illegible] the men who don't need them—and to be wary when you come to judge by them."

UP FROM THE DEATH CELL

The Story of a Man Who Made Good

BY JOHN W. KANE

EX-CONVICT NO. 1666.

(Copyright, 1923, in the United States, Canada, Great Britian and South America, by the North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

on an uneducated youth had fair grasping powers. And when I glanced up and began to ponder his words, the look in his eyes told me plainly that his thoughts did not include one bit of loyalty to a partner in crime. I felt certain from that very moment that if we two should be arrested, he would unburden himself of all he knew. Something told me that I was soon to face to face with a demonstration of the truth of that old saying, "there is no honor among thieves."

My Pal Gives a Hint.

"It's a good thing you took that old gun instead of your best one," said he, lowering my eyes. "Even if I did cut up pretty rough out of it——" And then he paused.

"Go on," said I. "What do you mean by that kind of talk?"

"Oh, nothing in particular," he returned. "I was thinkin' about it all just as if it was the case of somebody else instead of ours—or yours."

"Listen here." And I arose and stood before him. "You're in no danger whatever—if you'll keep your mouth shut. Can you do that?"

He fumbled nervously with the pieces which I had laid down.

"Yes, I can keep my mouth shut," came the answer, as he began to dress, "but I'm going to get out o' this town."

"Don't be a fool," I told him. "To start leaving here now would get you arrested quicker than anything else. We're in the Rocky Mountains—mountains on one side and a desert on the other. You're not in the east now, where there's a network of all kinds of roads. We've got to stick here and keep our mouths shut—even if we should be arrested."

"Where's your gun?" he inquired, noting the absence of it as I began to undress.

"I threw it away," said I; "and you'd better get rid of yours."

"Here's the pawn ticket. He reached toward a pocket. "I soaked it last night after you left me. That by itself would show that I wasn't wanting to do any stick-up work."

By great effort I kept from grabbing him by the throat and choking him into insensibility. I knew positively then there could be no doubt about the treachery welling up within him. All my fear of a few minutes before had vanished, except a kind of half hatred and half fear of him.

Kill or Be Killed.

"Oh, you're all right," I returned in a kind of off-hand manner. "Even if I should be arrested I won't tell them that I room with you, and you could prove that your gun was pawned and you knew nothing of the thing. It's too bad; I'm sorry that it happened," I concluded, "but it was a case of kill or be killed."

With that I again took up the paper and finished reading the account of my crime. My partner in the meantime was sitting half dressed. Suddenly he arose.

"It's cold in here; I'm going back to bed," he told me.

"I am too." And I put the paper aside. "After we take a sleep we can think better. And don't you be afraid," I assured him; "you haven't done any shooting and they can't work you in on any of it if you'll keep silent."

"Silent's the word," he returned, and a moment later I switched out the light.

If my companion slept he did it noiselessly. For my part I lay wide-eyed, trying to make out some course of procedure. Like all other guilty men I had one main mental inquiry; how am I to sidestep all hurtful consequences of this act? But tho that question wholly or fragmentarily pressed again and again thru my bewildered brain, each time I was stopped from finding any kind of definite answer, and the main reason of that stopped was the man there at my side. What, if anything, will he do? That question invariably came close in the wake of the other query. It was my last thought before I dropped off into a troubled doze.

When I awoke about eight o'clock on that January morning of 1904, the same question was facing me, and when, about five o'clock that afternoon, I saw my partner turn a corner a half block distant and disappear I felt that the tormenting question would soon be answered in some way.

$2,200 Reward Posted.

By that time large posters were to be seen upon every hand offering a total reward of $2,200 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties. At each turn, as I wandered about undecided, worried and fearful, one of those large-lettered cards seemed to be facing me individually and saying, "Only a matter of time and they'll have you."

I checked my steps and stood with a group reading one of the posters. Two different persons directed remarks toward me concerning the tragedy, and as I acquiesced to each, I thought of how little idea he had that he was rubbing elbows with the so-called murderer. A tall, mild-mannered, well dressed youth of twenty five is seldom if ever suspected of being a highwayman.

I was turning away from there when out the corner of my eye I saw something that seemed to be the beginning of the answer to that question: what will my partner do? With flushed face that same partner was approaching me. Some forty feet behind him, picking their way thru the crowd came four plainclothes men.

"Surely you haven't gunned somebody, Curly," he asked me.

"How is everything?" he inquired, then added, "I went to the room and wrote a letter."

I looked him squarely in the eyes and spoke low, but with a feeling of great anger:

"You're a liar! I see the bulls coming there—and you brought them."

"If I had a Gun!"

As long as I live I'll never forget the look of treachery and terror on the man's face. He began a kind of explanation and denial, but I cut him short.

"Shut up, you cur! If I had a gun right now, I'd kill you!"

He made a movement as if to turn back toward the officers, then we walked away side by side. I was about to check my steps with a view to facing around to meet arrest when both of my arms were seized.

"We want you," spoke a nervous, husky voice in my ear. And I knew the end of my brief criminal career was at hand.

Within ten minutes of my arrest, I was led into the office of the chief of detectives. My partner was taken to another part of the building.

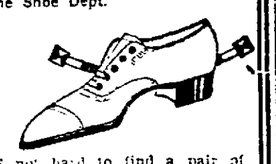
Cantilevers Are All-Day Shoes



IT'S not hard to find a pair of shoes that are comfortable as you walk down-town in the morning fresh and untired; but it's quite a different matter to find a pair that will be equally easy on your feet after a long, tiring day.

Cantilevers are specially designed to give support that will prevent extreme foot fatigue, and for this reason will be as comfortable at night as when you first put them on.

Comfort and foot well-being are the most important results of wearing Cantilevers, but they have the added advantage of looking smart at all times. The flexible Cantilever arch that gives with every movement of your foot, will make you unconscious of wearing shoes at all—except for the comforting assurance of being well shod.

WHO IS JOHN W. KANE?

Author of "Up From the Death Cell" Writes Only the Facts of His Own Life.

Four years ago (April 19, 1919,) a murderer, serving life, applied for parole under a new law whose existence on the statute books of the state was due to his own admit of regeneration and his own efforts with the knowledge of law and affairs which he had won by hard study in prison.

Today he is not a paroled prisoner, but a free man.

This is John W. Kane—that is the name he uses in his recital. It is a pseudonym, but all the rest is truth.

He is Convict No. 1666 no longer. He has made good. What he has done with his life since I went on the rocks nearly twenty years ago is enough to shield him from inquiries into his identity.

But he is a real man. He lives today. He was so when a certain two-year-old boy holds out his arms and calls "Daddy."

All that he writes is fact. He has lived thru it. The names are disguised; safe for that there is no tampering with actuality.

No. 1666 sinned, suffered, saw a gleam in the darkness and followed it. His story is a message of hope whose lesson applies not merely to those who are lodged in real cells but to others to whom adverse odds are like the stones of a prison.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW

Representatives who are planning to go from Lincoln to the fiftieth anniversary meeting of the national conference of social work, which is to be held in Washington, D. C., May 16-23, are Mrs. A. G. Warner, secretary of the Y. W. C. A. and Miss Constance Bell assistant secretary of the social welfare society. Mrs. Warner is particularly interested in the discussions concerning the church and school in social work and also the place of recreation. She says that recreation these days is apt to become an endurance test. One day of the conference will be devoted to these subjects. The home and social work will especially interest Miss Bell who says that there is a great need for social work in disorganized homes. There is a movement going on all over the United States to provide more family social workers. Miss Bell believes that more family workers would relieve the overcrowded conditions of detention homes and orphanages in the state. The second day of the conference will be taken up with five group meetings to discuss various phases of what social welfare work can do to combat the dangers threatening the home. Some topics of interest to social workers and industrial people in Nebraska will be "Industry and the Home," "Home Responsibilities of Industrial Women" and "Some State Activities Which Affect the Family." Dean Roscoe Pound, graduate of the University of Nebraska and former dean of the law college is chairman of the committee on law and government at the conference.

The Mafa dancing club closed its series of dancing parties for the season with a spring dinner dance Tuesday evening at the Lincoln hotel. Places were arranged for sixty-one couples at small tables around the ballroom. A low pink bowl of sweetpeas and pink roses in the center of which was a pink lighted taper formed the centerpiece for each table. The place cards were in the shape of dainty pink Maybaskets and a color motif of pink and lavender was followed in the decorations of the ballroom. During one of the favor dances the ladies received small pink and lavender fans and the men were given miniature balls and bats. The committee in charge of the arrangements for the party included Mrs. F. A. Roehl, Mrs. R. E. Reynolds, Mrs. C. C. Beck, Mrs. J. L. Teal and Mrs. J. T. Turner. The retiring officers of the club are Frank Roehl, L. A. White and C. C. Beck. The officers elected for the coming year are George A. Kurk, president; J. L. Teal, secretary-treasurer and Frank Van Andel, floor manager.

Earl Poor, deputy city clerk has received a telephone message from Walter Carson, for many years connected with the office of the city treasurer, that he and his family have arrived safely at Los Angeles. They are staying temporarily at the home of W. B. Poor, fathe rof the deputy clerk. Mr. and Mrs. Carson left Lincoln in their automobile making the trip to California overland. When they reached Los Animas, Col., they met with an accident which resulted in almost wrecking their car when a Ford driven by Alva Smith of Los Animas skidded and ran into their Buick at high speed. The collision was at the bottom of a steep ihll. No one was seriously hurt and the Smith car was not damaged. The Carsons were delayed nearly two days waiting for repairs to be made on their damaged automobile.

Miss Katherine M. Green returned Tuesday evening from Washington, D. C. where she attended the national congress of D. A. R. which was held in that city the week of April 15. Other Lincoln women who attended the congress are remaining in the east for visits with relatives and friends. Mrs. Allen R. Congdon will spend a month with relatives in Pennsylvania and Mrs. Louis M. Allen remained in Washington for a week to attend a musical meeting. Miss Marie Reichenbach is visiting in Lynchburg, Va. and Mrs. Charles F. Spencer is expected home some time during the week.

Three University of Nebraska students of the department of geology have been called to the oil fields of Mexico on a contract for two years. They are Richard Reese and Eugene Reed, both of Lincoln, and Carl Bong of Havelock. Mr. Reese is a grandson of a former dean of the law college. They will leave the city Wednesday evening and will report as soon as possible at Puerpo, Mexico. They have been engaged for oil geology work in Central Mexico.

Frank Bohanan of Peoria was in Lincoln Wednesday calling on old friends who knew him in 1868 and thereabouts, when with his brother Ed he ran the Bohanan Brothers meat market where the Terminal building now stands. Mr. Bohanan has been away from Lincoln twenty-five years and finds it grown out of all expectation. He expects to be here about three weeks.

The cooking school being held this week under the auspices of the Home economics department of the woman's club and directed by Miss L. Estelle Adams, food specialist from St Louis is attracting a good attendance. The subject for Thursday is "Salads and Sandwiches." Guests will bring menus for home dinners and the best and cheapest well balanced menus will take the three prizes to be given Friday. All the meetings are held in faculty hall from 2 to 4:30.

Kappa Alliance of Delta Delta Delta will entertain at a benefit card party Saturday afternoon at the Lindell. One hundred tables will be arranged for cards and light refreshments will be served. Mrs. Robert Drake is chairman of the benefit and the patronesses are Mrs. S. S. Hadley, Mrs. E. H. Barbour, Mrs. Grove E. Barber, Mrs. H. J. Kirschstein, Mrs. D. M. Butler and Mrs. Victor Krause.

STILL AWAIT RILEY SMITH

Promise That He Would Be Turned Over at Once So Far Is Not Fulfilled, State Authorities Declare.

Riley Smith, convicted of the robbery of the Farmers State bank at Ithaca by a jury in the district court of Saunders county and whose conviction was affirmed by the supreme court of the state, had not been turned over to state authorities at noon Wednesday. The promise was said to have been made that he would surrender to the state authorities on Monday. He was out on bond pending a decision of the supreme court in his case. He is now due to begin serving his sentence for the crime.

Mrs. Wiley Smith was recently granted a divorce in an Omaha court. At the time the divorce was granted, Mrs. Smith said she did not know where her husband was.

His attorneys in closing their brief in his appeal to the higher court said "the coming years will probably disclose who the real robbers are, and we feel certain that the defendant, Riley Smith, will yet be vindicated, either when he walks the streets a free man, or when the pardon board liberates him after unjust imprisonment when others confess."

The Farmers State bank of Ithaca was robbed December 16, 1921, about 1:35 p. m. Riley Smith was suspected, and after he had voluntarily gone to Ithaca to prove to Banker James Hall and his assistant, Miss Selma Hageman, that he was not one of the robbers who entered the bank, he was identified as one of the robbers by both Mr. Hall and Miss Hageman and held for trial.

The theory of the state was that Smith and his accomplice, after robbing the bank at 1:35 p. m. jumped into a Cadillac car that was standing in the street, with engine running, and went out into the country, hid the Cadillac behind an abandoned farm home, were met by a party of women friends they had accompanied from Omaha and were driven away in a Packard car. They ate dinner at the Ray Lampert home, a short distance from where the abandoned Cadillac was found.

They claimed they reached the Ray Lampert home at 1:15 and remained there for several hours. Smith swore that he and Fay Rogers, an Omaha woman friend, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown and Pete Boyd, drove to the Lampert home direct from Omaha, and that they were at the Lampert home at the time of the bank robbery. Mr. and Mrs. William Brown never produced as witnesses altho Smith asked a continuance of his case that they might be found. The search of officers to locate them was not successful. The hour of arrival of Riley Smith and his party at the Lampert home was the subject of conflict of testimony.

"Smith's attorneys made much of the fact that as soon as Smith had heard, thru a friend, that he was suspected of a part in the bank robbery that he went at once to the Omaha station, discussed the matter with the Omaha police, and himself suggested that he would go to Ithaca with officers and prove that he was not the man; that he did come to Lincoln alone and went to Ithaca from Lincoln in company with State Deputy Hans Neilsen, accompanied from Wahoo by Sheriff Dailey. They claimed that a man guilty of the crime would not thus have placed himself in jeopardy.

Attorneys for Riley Smith made the claim in their brief to the supreme court that he was convicted on general principles, because he had been in the whisky business, and not because he had robbed the Ithaca bank. For many years, Smith had been a citizen of Omaha. He is thirty-five years of age, five feet eight inches tall, light complexion, smiling, affable, and an expert at mixing with other men.

He was known in Omaha as a boxer, a horse buyer, a commission man. Nevertheless, Smith admitted, since prohibition came, he had been largely interested in the movement of whisky to Omaha and surrounding towns. After Nebraska went dry, he was engaged in the movement of whisky from St. Joe to Omaha. After the nation went dry, the source of supply was Canada.

He made many trips from Oxbow, Saskatchewan, to Omaha by way of Minot, Aberdeen, Sioux Falls and east of the river to Council Bluffs. He boasted that on these long auto trips with cargoes of whisky he had never been stopped. Business was thrilling enough because of the high speed necessary, several car accidents and the rather remote possibility then of interference by dry agents. One of his companions told of a car which Smith was driving 45 miles an hour turning over, throwing the car, the two occupants and forty-four cases of whisky in a heap. The car was not seriously damaged but a few bottles were broken and the occupants escaped unhurt. The delay caused was only the time required to right and reload the cars.

Friendly farmers from nearby houses helped in the work of starting the party on its way again and were rewarded with a bottle or two for their labors.

This whisky route was 2,290 miles long from Omaha to Omaha. It was said that at the time Smith was in the business there were at least a dozen runners. Smith boasted that he frequently made the time from Omaha to Oxbow and return in four and a half days actual running time, and that his average speed counting out stops for gas, water and oil was forty miles an hour.

Smith did a wholesale business. His cargo was always sold in advance. He also delivered it some of the wealthy men of Omaha were his best patrons. After having one check turned down at the bank he afterwards insisted on cash in advance. It was related that he delivered a cargo of whisky to a wealthy Omaha man and received a check on which [illegible] incidents of the game. He had learned a lesson. After that customers paid cash.

It was related also that his car was never stopped on the bridge coming into Omaha. The trip across was always made after night. His assistant would be discharged in the business section of the city and Smith would go on with the cargo to complete the delivery. Within an hour after reaching Omaha, Riley Smith would have no booze in his possession.

Discussing the booze business at Oxbow, Canada, one of Riley Smith's assistants told the following story. A saloon keeper was discussing the business methods of a rival and he said," I don't want to say anything about my competitor. He is a gentleman. He even makes his own whisky."

STILL OBJECT TO A DAM

A. W. Richardson Claims the Capital Beach Project Would Make a Swamp of Bunting Tract.

A. W. Richardson, attorney for Anna Bunting, owner of 160 acres of land near Capital Beach, testified Wednesday morning in district court as to the effect he believed the proposal of Capital Beach owners to build a dam across Oak creek would have on the Bunting property. He declared that a dam which would raise the level of the water in Oak creek to a level with the water in Salt lake would cause the Bunting land to be swamped from beneath.

The Central Realty & Investment company proposed to build a dam across Oak creek at the point nearest Salt lake, and to direct creek into the lake at that point to make up for evaporation, and to raise the water in the cree to prevent seepage from the lake into the stream. Tillman Flader and other property owners believe that the dam would back water up until their lands would be damaged. They applied for an injunction. Attorneys in the case suggested that the Capital Beach owners construct a pipe line at a point in Oak creek wheer the water is higher than it is in the lake, and thus keep the lake up to its present height.

RAY LOWER GIVES SELF UP

Surrenders to Sheriff Daily at Wahoo. Supreme Court Clerk Is Told.

Ray A. Lower, former Valparaiso banker, has given himself over to the custody of Sheriff Daily at Wahoo, according to information reaching the office of the supreme court clerk Wednesday morning. The sheriff had no papers authorizing him to bring Lower to the state penitentiary, and it was necessary for the supreme court clerk to send the mandate of that tribunal to the sheriff so that he might act in the matter.

No request was made that Lower join Riley Smith, the missing bank robber, who was to give himself up to sheriff Daily also.

TWO-FIFTHS OF $100,000 BUDGET REPORTED WEDNESDAY NOON.

The Community Chest fund passed the two-fifths mark Wednesday noon when the 250 canvassers reported $12,669.77 subscribed in the twenty-four hour period. The total reported Tuesday was $27,442.06 and the grand total to date is $40,112.83.

Division A, handling the large subscriptions, reported only $1,713 Wednesday, saying they were holding out a little. The regimental banner went to the Red regiment, commanded by C. H. Roper, whose total was $3,5k1.69. A. S. Dougall of the White regiment was again high captain, with pledges amounting to $1,164.83.

There was much applause and mutal congratulation until it was announced that results were falling below the average of such campaigns, and that more speed and bigger subscriptions must be attained if Lincoln was to sustain its reputation. The goal is $100,000 for the support of twelve organizations, and the campaign will continue until this sum is raised. The corporation has 17,000 names of probable subscribers on its lists. An itemized report to Wednesday noon follows:

WHERE YOUR DOLLAR GOES

Irving S. Paull to Make a Number of Addresses in Lincoln Next Week.

Irving S. Paull, secretary of the recent joint commission of agricultural inquiry will arrive Friday, May 4, to make several addresses in Lincoln on "Where Your Dollar Goes." Mr. Paull, a business analyst, was retained by the government to conduct the probe and by a special act of congress was given autocratic federal powers to compel to production of figures and facts which would bring to light the true individual situation.

It is said to be the first complete compilation of authentic statistics which covers the entire price "spread" which the consumer is forced to pay. In other words it shows the complete distribution of the dollar which the consumer pays over the counter for the finished article.

Mr. Paull is making a speaking tour over the United States, visiting all of the larger cities. He will address the Kiwanis club, a community meeting at the auditorium under the auspices of the woman's club, a meeting of the University business-administration department and a conference of Lincoln business men at the commercial club.

At the time Mr. Paull was secretary of the investigating commission in Washington, congress had been bombarded by enraged committees representing the various industrial groups which were affected by high prices which were at their peak. Manufacturers, miners, bankers, railroad executives, and employes, jobbers and retail merchants were under heavy fire. Each was accusing the other of profiteering. Legislative committees were demanding relief from congress. At Washington, the senate and house joined forces and selected a representative group. They gave this committee autocratic powers to demand all the records of any and all business concerns and take every possible measure to get all the real facts.

The job of sifting and analyzing this volume of information was turned over to Mr. Paull. It is the report of this committee that Mr. Paull is bringing to Lincoln.

STARTS WAR ON AUTOISTS

Over 700 Traffic Law Violators and Careless Drivers Summoned to Chicago Courts.

CHICAGO, April 25.—More than seven hundred traffic law violators and careless drivers were summoned to court today in a police drive to end the "auto menace" that has taken 188 lives here this year.

More than 500 of the alleged parking and traffic violators were arrested on one day. Hundreds of mounted policemen and patrolmen, raided the loop district to enforce ordinances for the first time in years.

SHOPMEN ASK AN INCREASE

Maintenance of Way Employes of Twenty-eight Railroads Also in Request for Advance.

CHICAGO, Apr. 25.—Application of [illegible] for a maintenance of [illegible] orders of twenty-eight railroads for a pay increase averaging 10 1-2 cents a hour was placed before the United States railroad labor board today.

The application affects more than 100,000 men and would involve a total payroll increase of $25,000,000 yearly. The petition closely followed one from the Order of Railway Expressmen asking a 10-cent an hour increase.

The application of the maintenance men disclosed that the union has successfully negotiated wage increases with fifteen roads, including the New York Central and the Boston and Maine.

IRVING S. PAULL.

Former secretary of the joint congressional commission of agricultural inquiry which recently made a comprehensive survey of the fundamental factors involved in the present cost of living. Mr. Paull will arrive in Lincoln Friday, May 4. He will speak at the Kiwanis luncheon at noon and at a community meeting under the auspices of the Lincoln Woman's club at the auditorium in the evening. He will also speak at the University of Nebraska in the forenoon and will lead a conference of business men at the chamber of commerce at 3 p. m. His subject is "Where Your Dollar Goes."

SHEIK TOOK FIRMS' CASH

TRUSTED CASHIER BY DAY WAS GAY AT NIGHT.

Missing Man Is Charged With Embezzling of $75,000 From Four Companies for Which He Worked.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Ernest B. Schwab, model cashier by day and alleged cabaret habitue, sheik and "prince of spenders" by night, was sought thruout the west today on embezzlement charges involving $75,000.

Abraham Warsaw, president of Weedron Silicia company, one of the four firms for which Schwab acted as cashier, swore out a warrant for the fugitive after an initial shortage of $18,000 was discovered.

Detectives trailing the cashier, regarded by his firms as a trusted and efficient employe, declared that Schwab was known as the "sheik of the bright light district."

Schwab disappeared April 5, his employers believing he had gone on a vacation. His accounts in the Weedron Silicia company and the three other firms in the same suite of offices were checked after it was said at his home that his wife had gone with her two children to California.

Pinkerton operatives announced they traced the cashier as far as Memphis, where, they assert, he was seen frequently about night cafes with a pretty woman.

From Memphis, the operatives believe, the trail leads to California.

ASKED JUDGE TO HALT SUIT

DEFENDANTS WOULD TAKE MATTER FROM JURY.

Say Matters Testified to by Plaintiff in Stocker Case, Even If They Should Not Be Denied, Are Not a Basis for Suit.

Attorney C. C. Flansburg, attorney for Mrs Harriett Stocker, defendant in a $50,000 alienation of affections suit brought by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Gussie Stocker, entered a motion Wednesday morning asking District Judge Shepherd to instruct the jury to return an immediate verdict for the defendant.

It is claimed by the defense that even if the alleged abuses testified to by Mrs. Gussie Stocker went undenied by the defense, there would be no legal cause of action for alienation of the affections of Thomas R. P. Stocker, the plaintiff's husband, and that the matters set forth by the plaintiff do not under the law constitute a cause of action.

The jury was dismissed until 2 p. m. while the attorneys argued the motion. In case it is overruled, testimony for the defense was scheduled to begin in the afternoon, the plaintiff's case was rested just prior to the introduction of the motion for a directed verdict.

Mrs. Mattie E. Rhoades, mother of the plaintiff, testified during the morning. She declared that prior to her daughter's marriage with "Reggie" Stocker, the defendant's son, the present Mrs. Reggie Stocker was a healthy, cheerful girl, weighing about 115 pounds. She said that when her daughter left the Stocker home in Lincoln in 1921, more than four years later, she was emaciated, pale, and gloomy. She was a "pitiful looking object," the mother declared. The defense attorney took exception to the latter statement, and got it stricken out of the record.

It is alleged by the plaintiff that her mother-in-law threatened to commit suicide and disinherit Reggie if he maintained a separate home for himself and wife, and at the same time made conditions so unpleasant to the wife that she refused to live there longer, thus bringing about the destruction of a home that might have been happy.

Guy Rhoades, of Auburn, who is a brother to the plaintiff, testified that he had been told by the defendant that the plaintiff and her mother were liars and thieves.

Mrs. Don Critchfield, 2535 P street, testified that she heard quarreling at the Stocker home. Alfred R. Thomas, Mrs. Critchfield's brother-in-law, testified that one night in the spring of 1921, he was in the driveway adjoining the Stocker home, and heard a "mannish woman's voice" making a steady flow of language, and that "about two-thirds of it was profanity." He said the flow of language lasted about five minutes.

Mrs. Rhoades said she never went to the Stocker home to see her daughter because she telephoned once to talk to her daughter, and while the receiver was down she heard her daughter's mother-in-law call her a —— —— thief, liar and fool, and add that her mother was the same.

GOODHUE INVESTIGATORS MAKE A REPORT

While there was some conflict in the testimony, the evidence showed that the acoustic material used in these buildings is from two to three times the efficiency of the "hard-burned semi-porous" tile called for in the specifications, and that it costs only about one-half to one-third as much per square foot. It is also claimed that the necessary quantity of acoustic material required by the architect's plans and specifications will cost from four to nine times as much as an equally effective quantity of the material used in the buildings above referred to. We believe that the capitol commission can make a saving of many thousands of dollars to the state on acoustic material alone if it sees fit to invite bids on the various kinds of such material now being used in other public buildings.

7.—Your committee further finds that the architect's plans and specifications for heat and ventilation of the capitol building contained the following provisions: "The radiators shall be of the 'Peerless' type, made by the American Radiator company, or equivalent, with malleable iron screw nipples."

That upon the discovery of the requirements of this specification the capitol commission took up the matter with the proper authorities for the purpose of opening the specification for all standard materials and equipment, thus permitting other firms besides the American Radiator company to bid for the furnishing of the radiation for the capitol building. It appears from the evidence that the architect's plans and specifications would have the effect of confining the bidding for the furnishing of the radiation and the ventilation of the capitol building to one company.

Your committee further finds that the capitol commission later caused these plans and specifications to be opened to other makes of radiators and that it made a satisfactory adjustment of the matter concerning the furnishing of radiation and ventilation for the building. We are, however, of the opinion that the architect has offered no justifiable excuse for so drawing the plans and specifications that the radiation and ventilation of the building was practically limited to material manufactured by the American Radiator company alone. We are of the opinion also that he did not properly protect the interest of the state in that regard.

8.—Your committee finds also that the architect's plans and specifications provided for the class of windows which was made [illegible] by the International Casement company. That later this matter was taken up with the architect by the capitol commission so that bids from other standard companies could also be received, and that by so doing the capitol commission saved to the state approximately eleven thousand ($11,000) dollars on the windows for one section of the building alone.

9.—While there was some controversy concerning the marble columns to be furnished for the building, it seems that this matter has been properly adjusted. The committee therefore makes no finding in reference to the marble columns complained.

10.—In regard to the carving, it seems that the architect had a special preference for Mr. Ardolino, whom he considers of superior ability as a carver. It seems also that the capitol commission had a bid from one of the large carving associations in the United States and that it proposed to do the carving on the first section of the building for approximately twenty-six thousand ($26,000) dollars less than the price which was asked by Mr. Ardolino, who was recommended by Mr. Goodhue. If a saving of twenty-six thousand ($26,000) dollars can be made in the carving for one section of the building alone, the saving on the three sections would be large enough to at least justify the capitol commission in carefully investigating the ability and reputation of other carvers. It appears that the architect has shown a special favoritism to Mr. Ardolino by designating him as the person to whom the contract for carving should be let. It appears that he did not have a thorough knowledge of the saving which could be made by employing other carvers. The committee makes no further findings or suggestions than as above indicated.

11.—As to the specifications submitted by [illegible] covering hardware and certain [illegible] having a distance of 1½ inches from center of hub to center of cylinder, it does appear that the plans and specifications were indefinite as to detail, and that as drawn they had the effect of limiting competition among bidders. We do not believe that the architect has offered any justifiable excuse for so drafting his plans and specifications and in so limiting the bidding on this class of material. As the contract for this material has not been let this matter, however, can still be properly cared for and adjusted if the capitol commission, in its judgment, deems it advisable to do so.

12.—As to the bonding or overlapping of the stone in the walls of the building, your committee finds that there are places in the walls where the bonding of the stone is only four to eight inches, altho the stone at such places is from three to five feet in length. In one place in particular, this short bonding runs up the side of the building and in almost a straight or perpendicular line for a distance of eight or ten feet. Testimony was taken on this matter. It was contended by the witnesses on one side that the bonding of the stone was not a matter of much consequence where the foundation of the building is firm and secure. On the other hand, there were capable and experienced men who testified that the short overlap or bonding of the stone was defective and is not considered standard practice. The architect contended that the bonding was so arranged because of certain artistic effects which he desired to produce. Your committee was not satisfied with the explanation of those who sought to justify the short overlapping of the stone. We believe it to be a departure from the generally acknowledged practice of masons.

Your committee realizes that the capitol commission is composed of men of integrity, ability, business experience and of high standing. They have served without pay, and have given much time and attention to their duties. They have been frequently compelled to neglect their private affairs in order to properly perform their duties and that they must rely upon the architect in matters requiring technical knowledge of building. The evidence shows that the members of the commission have acted promptly whenever it came to their knowledge that specifications as prepared by the architect did not provide for competitive bids on certain materials and that in every such case they ordered that necessary changes be made to meet such requirements. They have performed their duties in a conscientious manner and have aided this committee in every possible way during this investigation.

The committee recommends that a deputy inspector, other than the clerk of the works selected by the architect, be appointed as required by the section of the statute above referred to, in order that the interests of the state be guarded at all times in the construction of the building.

Your committee finds that the first section of the capitol building comprises about 39.85 per cent of the entire building; that the total contracts awarded for that section amount to approximately $2,800,533; that on the same basis, the capitol building will cost the state about $7,000,000; that it will be necessary to expend about $400,000 extra on the grounds and for heating plant and removal of old buildings.

Other estimates furnished your committee place the cost of building at about $9,000,000, but it was contended that some reduction would likely be made in these figures.

It should be borne in mind that the cost of furniture, fixtures and supplies are not included within these totals and that the appropriation for the erection of the capitol is $5,000,000. The statute which requires the architect as well as all others connected with the erection of the building, to keep within the appropriation should be always kept in mind in determining the kind and cost of material to be used.

With these requirements in mind, it seems that it is the duty of the architect and all other persons in charge, to keep in mind when contracting for material their imperative duty to not exceed the appropriation. To do this, competitive bids should be had whenever possible on material or work required. In this respect we believe the architect was negligent. We also are of the opinion that as the state has contracted to repay the architect, in addition to his annual salary of $25,000 for practically all expense he may properly incur while in the performance of his duty; that he should carefully guard the state as to the cost of material used, and strive to keep the total costs of the building exclusive of furnishings as nearly within the appropriation of $5,000,000 as possible. The people have a right to expect this and demand that it be done.

If the labors of this committee help to bring about the above results, and to restore fair competitive bidding on public contracts, and helps to guard against excessive and extravagant expenditure of public funds, we shall feel that our efforts have not been in vain.

PARTY CIRCLE IS NOT DEAD

STRONG EFFORT BEING MADE TO REVIVE MEASURE.

Senate Will Be Asked to Reconsider Its Action in Killing House Measure Taking Circle Off Ballot.

The Mears-Osterman bill abolishing the party circle, altho once more consigned to the waste basket by the senate Tuesday afternoon, is not yet dead. The friends of the measure surprised everybody by rallying fourteen votes in its favor.

An effort is to be made in a day or two to get another vote o nthe bill. It is felt by those who are supporting it that the senators do not realize the strength of the public sentiment behind the measure, and that the women of the state particularly are desirous of having it passed.

The principal opposition comes from two sources: The old party leaders who do not want their task of winning an election increased by the necessity of having to educate that section of the electorate that now votes a party label and those who hesitate as to whether the people are sufficiently equipped to make intelligent use of the ballot when they must mark each candidate.

The friends of the measure say that it will do away with most of the remaining evils of elections, particularly those where organized bodies interested in the election or defeat of some candidate can put across their plan by sending out directions to vote the ticket straight. This results in the defeat often of men capable of rendering valuable public service since these are slashed because the voter is warned that if he doesn't vote it straight he may spoil his ballot and lose his vote. They argue that intelligent voting is desirable, and this but insures it.

CITY WORK IS DELAYED

Willing to Wait Short Time Until Contractor Can Pave and Grade Viaduct Approaches.

The construction company which has the contract for the grading and paving of the approaches to the Holdrege street viaduct of the Rock Island railroad intended to begin work Thursday morning but the desire of the state university authorities to hurry along the stadium that it may be ready for the football game with Notre Dame university has resulted in postponing the city work for about two weeks.

The city council is anxious to have the viaduct approaches graded and paved, and the manager of the company held a conference with Mayor Zehrung Wednesday morning to secure permission to do the stadium job first because of the emergency existing. The mayor assured him that it would be all right to go ahead with the university contract as a difference of a couple of weeks on the Holdrege street project would not prove a serious drawback to completing it in a short time. The Rock Island bridge department is now ready to remodel the viaduct and make it capable of bearing a heavier traffic.

PASSES NEW BANK DRAFT

Senate Makes Certain That Mistake That Threatened to Muss Things Up Is Now All Straightened Out.

The senate put a new dress on H. R. 237 Wednesday morning and sent it back to its father for approval. Originally this bill provided that when the department of banking approved it would be lawful for banks to borrow money in the way of rediscounts in excess of the combined capital stock and surplus, but that it would be punishable for any officer to put up as collateral more than one and a half times the amount of the obligation.

The principal part of the bill as amended by the senate is an amendment to H. R. 272, which restores the sentence that was intended to be made a part of that bill, but which was never adopted by the senate after the standing committee had recommended it.

This provides that where a bank has been taken over by a receiver or the guaranty fund commission no sale of it shall be made if within a year the owners of the majority of the capital stock who have not been criminally liable for any act in the past conduct of the bank can show there is a reasonable probability that it can be made wholly solvent and a going concern.

Governor Bryan says he insisted on this amendment being made before he would name the commissioners provided for in H. R. 272. Thirty-one votes were cast in its favor, and none against. It now goes to the house for concurrence.

The senate adopted the conference committee reports on H. R. 288, which leaves the appropriation for the eradication of scabies at $10,000; H. R. 584, which provides for not to exceed 15 per cent of the bovine tuberculosis appropriation shall be paid on outside accredited herds, and H. R. 35, the Lancaster county rural paving bill. Senator Warner says that as this now stands no special assessments will be made for future paving, but the machinery is left for spending the $115,000 now on hand and that collected in the future from inheritance taxes.

The senate also adopted the house amendment to S. F. 101, the egg candling bill, which provides a dark room for candling purposes.

Senator Saunders presented an invitation from the Omaha chamber of commerce to go to that city for luncheon or dinner at the expense of that body, which will pay carfare both ways and set out the eats. He said it did not desire to influence the legislature, but did want to show its appreciation for the work done. Senators Saunders, Anderson and Purcell will talk with a like committee from the house for the making of arrangements.

visions and departments. It is entrusted not only with the higher instructional work of Nebraska but includes also much of the research, survey and extension activities relating to state development.

"The university is making a rapid growth, the number of students having doubled with the past few years. This presents a real problem to the regents and chancellor because the appropriations for the support of the institution have not kept pace with the growth.

"We observe also that the university, altho hampered by lack of funds, holds high rank among the leading universities of the country. The per capita cost for the education of students is less than in most state universities. Notwithstanding these facts, we find that there is considerable criticism by citizens because of the increasing amount needed to support the university, but we efind in this connection that the cost is much less than is generally supposed. Some of the funds are provided by the federal government; the legislature votes certain amounts ;and ther eis a large revolving fund derived from the sale of poultry, dairy products, etc., and all of these are taken into account in the general budget, making a total cost of the university appear much greater than it really is. The fact is that the cost to the people of the state for the biennium is not now $6,000,000, as is generally claimed but a little over half the amount.

"We find that all property of the university is carefully inventoried; that there is a well devised system for the purchase of supplies and that an efficiency survey has been made looking forward to even greater co-ordination of the departments and activities to the end that there will be no duplication. All purchases are carefully investigated: materials and supplies are bought for the most part at wholesale and only when needed."

SEARCH FOR SHIP'S CREW

American Fishing Schooner Reported Scuttled by Crew After Chase by Canadians.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 25.—Search of the coast and forests of Quatsino Sound, Vancouver island, was in progress today for the captain and crew of the American fishing schooner Siloam.

The vessel was reported to have been scuttled by her crew after having been fired upon in an exciting chase by the Canadian fishery patrol steamer Malaspina.

Captain Newcomb of the Malaspina reported he found the Siloam poaching within the three-mile limit. The American craft, he said, fled at his approach.

Orders to stop were said to have been disregarded. The Malaspina drew close to the Siloam and gave warning that rifle fire would be used if the Siloam did not stop. The warning was said to have gone unheeded whereupon the decks of the Siloam were swept by rifle fire and the wheelhouse perforated.

The Siloam was then reported to have stopped, but the Canadian officers, examining the ship, found she had been scuttled and was leaking badly.

In the excitement the crew of the Siloam escaped, according to Captain Newcomb. The vessel was beached.

MANY DUCK HUNTERS FINED

Two Hundred Dollar Penalty Imposed Upon Harry Hiles of Brady for Having One Beaver Pelt.

Chief Game Warden George G. Koster has received word of the prosecution of Harry Hiles of Brady for having in his possession one beaver pelt. A fine of $200 and costs, totaling $219, was imposed. GRAND ARMY LOSSES LIGHT

At G. A. R. headquarters at the state house the conviction is daily gaining ground that many G. A. R. comrades will be on hand for department encampments for years to come.

By Wednesday morning applications had been received for 600 identification certificates for G. A. R. comrades and their widows, nearly every one of these represents a comrade and wife so there are likely to be at last 600 comrades present.

The prospect is that every officer except one will be here to answer roll call and that out of fifteen past department commanders all but one will report present.

The various reports will show a good year for the department; only five posts have been lost from the roster durinfg the last year, and 235 members. The loss in posts and membership is less than any year in the history of the organization. While the loss in membership has lessened the return from the per capita tax, the expenses of the year have been correspondingly less so that the balance in the treasury May 1, 1923, is practically the same as one year ago.

Adjutant Bross challenges the attention of the officials and heads of other departments to the economical management of the last year.

Apart from the small appropriation by the legislature for printing and temporary clerk hire; the total expense for the year 1922-1923, including the per capital tax of $173 to the national encampment, the whole outlay for the year has been figured down to $1,003.40.

This has maintained with care and efficiency the entire work of the G. A. R in Nebraska for twelve months. The department has no debts and there will be no deficit in the state appropriation at the end of the biennium July 1, 1923.

At the date March 15, every post had sent its report and per capita tax for 1922 and had its delegates enrolled on the list of members of the encampment of 1923.

STATE MUSEUM TO BE OPEN

Geologists Cooperate With Engineers—Great Microscopes to Be in Operations.

The department of geology at the University of Nebraska is working in cooperation with the department of engineering for the brilliant display on the campus promised for Thursday evening. While the wheels are turning in the engineering building they will be turning as well in the museum where the students in geology have set up an oil derrick with bull wheel samson post walking beam, bailer and the like. This will be in full operation. Students will be in attendance to explain the drilling methods.

A large plaster model of an anticline and syncline has been prepared with an oil bearing layer. Attendants will explain the surface and show the sub-surface structure.

In the mineral laboratory, students will be at work with the blow pipe to show the visiting public how minerals are tested by means of color flame and other properties.

The semi-gems of Nebraska and beautiful gem stones from other lacolities will be o nexhibition with attendants to exhibit the stones in the rough and thsoe cut. Microscopes will be set up on the laboratory tables with objects of popular interest displayed thru their lenses. The two great projecting microscopes will be in operation.

All floors of the museum as well as the engineering buildings will be illuminated and open to the public. Attendants on the various floors will receive guests and explain exhibits.

SENATE CUTS CAPITOL FUND

TO AVOID EXCEEDING LEGAL LIMIT OF $5,000,000.

Also Clips Off an Apparent Appropriation of $236,000 for the Department of Agriculture.

The senate reconsidered the maintenance bill Wednesday morning and by unanimous consent looped off $1,604,066 or apparently did so. Reed, chairman of the finance committee, asked unanimous consent to make changes in appropriations. He asked that the appropriation fixed by the house at $3,283,111 for the capitol fund be reduced to $1,915,045. He said the reason was to avoid appropriating more than a total of $5,000,000 for the capitol, this total having been fixed by law when provision was made for an annual levy. He said the statutes appear to prohibit making an appropriation in excess of the maximum fixed when the original capital bill was passed.

No one objected and the amount was reduced.

At the urgent request of Hanning and Purcell, members of the finance committee, representing the democratic minority, the item of $275,000 for the use of the department of agriculture was reduced to the $39,000 as provided for in the house when the bill passed that body. Reed said the result of the change of amount and form of the appropriation would in the end make no difference. The change was made by unanimous consent, thus lopping off an apparent appropriation of $236,000. The amount represents estimated feed or a portion thereof, together with unexpended balances on hand June 30, 1923. The senate finance committee's amendment containing the figures $275,000 limited the expeditures of the department to that figure. The $39,000 provided by the house is merely an estimate of fees.

Osborne of Morrill desired to reduce the $285,000 for tuberculosis eradication in the bill, an item not challenged the day before. His motion was defeated.

Reed, chairman of the committee was joined by Purcell, also a member in asking that the item be not reduced on the ground that the amount to be allowed, if any is appropriated, may be fixed by a conference committee of the two houses.

The bill was again advanced to third reading with senate amendments.

SAYS HUSBAND DIDN'T PROVIDE.

Mrs. Elizabeth LaSelle Gilman filed suit for divorce Wednesday morning in district court against Harry F. Gilman, alleging that her husband, altho able to provide for her, failed to do so. They were married in Lincoln August 28, 1907, and have one child, of which the mother asks custody, together with an allowance for its support.

CHURCH A KING'S MEMORIAL.

MUNICH. (By Mail.)- Funs are being collected in democratic Bavaria for a memorial chapel to the last Bavarian king, Ludwig and his wife, Maria Theresia. The radical press points out that the mayors of the towns of Bavaria have been called upon to organize these funds. The little church is to be built in Widenwarth and is a departure from past memorials in Bavaria, all previous rulers having been honored with statues of their royal selves in various prominent places—especially in Munich.

A Last Search.

The next morning Mrs. Tindall, her niece and Willows ali motored into town again to the deceased dowager's home.

"Something tells me we are going to find the will today," said Evelyn, as they entered the dowager's private suite and each took up the research work they had left the day before.

"I do hope so, dear," replied her aunt.

But Willows was not so optimistic. "I doubt if we ever find it," he said, gloomily. "I personally believe that my wife's aunt intended to make another will, but died before she had time to construct it. I have another theory, too—it seems to me you women can take care of her boudoir things, but if you have no objection I would like to go thru the library. I understand that Mrs. Bowers spent a great deal of time among her books and if she had a lawyer or any witnesses she would be very apt to construct this will downstairs."

"All right; go to the library and spend your day there," said Mrs. Tindall. "We'll meet you in the sun parlor for luncheon at 1."

Evelyn and her aunt searched thru drawers, boxes and every available nook and corner. Every letter was opened and read carefully to see if there could possibly be any allusion to a possible will. Every card case, leather folder or box was emptied and thoroly searched. Neither spoke while this work was going on.

At 1 o'clock the little party met in the parlor for luncheon, but little conversation passed between them. Their faces were smirched with dirt and their eyes weary from searching and reading. Every one wanted to go back to his work and nobody seemed to be eating very much.

"I suppose we better dine at 7 and then motor down to your bungalow again," said Mrs. Tindall at the conclusion of the luncheon. Willows nodded and the two women made their way to the dowager's boudoir in silence.

"It must be very depressing for you to have to go thru all these things of your sister's," said Evelyn as they hovered patiently over their work.

"Not any more for me than it is for you, dear," responded her aunt. "In one way I think it is a trifle harder upon you, for you lived here so many years and were brought up in this house, while I was only an occasional visitor.

"It is depressing," admitted Evelyn, "but I want to find the will and if we didn't do this some one else might buy the furniture and find it years after we are dead. Stanley and I need the money and could be so happy and secure with it and I dread to think of everything going to charity and big, red-tape institutions."

"I've found it! Here is your will!" cried Willows, running into the room with his hair standing almost on ends and his voice high pitched and uncanny.

"Oh!" exclaimed Mrs Tindall.

"Stanley!" cried Evelyn, running over to her husband. "I found it in a book—the dictionary, an fact — and it's the last will and everything goes to you, Evelyn. This is no false alarm. Now please sit down and I'll read it to you. Mrs. Tindall, will you have a glass of water?"

He pushed a button and summoned a maid. Mrs. Tindall had not fainted, but she was very weak.

"I feel better now," she sighed, after hastily consuming a glass of water. "Now, go ahead and read the will."

CHICAGO, April 25. Liberal buying of grain for export continued on the Chicago board of trade today and prices were strong and higher.

Unfavorable crop indications were the main bullish influences in wheat. Leading grain houses declared that the amount of abandoned acreage in winter wheat sections was likely to be large, owing to the backward spring and seeding of spring wheat seriously late, causing a large acreage reduction. Germany and Turkey were the main buyers of grain.

Corn reached new high figures for the crop. Receipts were light and cash prices sharply higher. The Argentine crop was reported not turning out as good as had been anticipated. It was of poor quality and only about 60 per cent of a normal yield, according to latest advices.

Offerings of oats were not heavy and the market quickly absorbed all available supplies at increased prices.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Grain prices were irregular at the opening on the Chicago board of trade today.

Wheat opened higher, with May leading in the advance, due to increased foreign demand. Liverpool opened higher. Better weather conditions caused some selling in the deferred months, the southwest reporting milder temperatures.

Better weather conditions caused a lower corn market. Farm work was on the increase in the southwest, while the northwest reported mild weather after yesterday's storms. Export sales worked overnight were estimated at 300,000 bushels. Receipts were light, 70 cars being reported.

Grain Market Opinions.

Bartlett-Frazier & Co.:Believe wheat should have a decided decline before purchases are in order. We would not care to buy corn at these levels.

E. Lowitz & Co.: Conditions favor much higher prices for wheat and corn.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: Conditions remain unfavorable.

Clement, Curtis & Co.: The markets have a firm undertone.

Logan & Bryan: We favor the buying side on all setbacks.

Simpson: I am still of the opinion that prices for wheat and corn will gradually work higher an dthat setbacks in the market will be only temporary.—Lamson.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Confidence in grain values is growing. All offerings disappear on breaks and come out daily on bulges.

Recessions are not expected to be extensive. Limited selling pressure exists in corn. Cash houses have been active in absorbing the May. Seeding conditions in the northwest are reaching a serious stage.

Exporters bid 11@11¼ cents over Chicago May for hard winter at the gulf the best of the season thus far. There was little wheat offered even at these bids.

Exports sales of wheat were 500,000 bushels Manitobas and 200,000 durum. Corn 300,000 rye 200,000. London reported the sale of around 1,000,000 Argentine wheat now afloat buyer not specified. —Lamson.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, April 25. — Leading operators express the opinion that the wheat market needs a new motive to advance materially from its present levels. Purchases on breaks for moderate profits, however, are offered by many.

Cash house here reported a sale of corn to Kansas City at a price equal to 96 cents per bushel for No. 2 yellow at Chicago.

Iowa and Illinois points reported feeders paying high prices with the demand in excess of the supply in most instances.—Lamson.

Demand held up well for good to choice beeves selling at $9.25@9.50, but on the plain yearlings selling under $8 it was rather slow going from start to finish. Cows and heifers were in moderate supply and moderately steady, and the trade in stockers and feeders was much the same as it was all week. Quotations: Yearlings, $6.50@8.40; cows and heifers, $3.00@8.25; stockers and feeders, $6.00@8.25; calves, $5.00@10.50; bulls and stags, $4.40@7.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 8,000. The light run of hogs moved fairly readily today, mostly at steady prices, with spots strong to 5c up. Good quality light hogs and butchers moved largely at $7.50@7.60, with a top price of $7.70. Packing sows sold mostly at $6.20 and stags at $5.50.

Sheep—Receipts, 9,500. Buyers were bearish today, due to fairly liberal receipts, and trading was slow at prices weak to 15c lower. Wooled lambs sold at $14.00@14.50 and clipped lambs mostly at $11.25@11.75. A small lot of native spring lambs sold at $15. Two loads of good quality shearing lambs went out at $14.15. Sheep were fully steady, clipped ewes selling at $7.75@8.00 and the wooled variety at $9.25.

Foreign Exchange Market.

New York Liberty Bonds.

NEW YORK, April 25.—U. S. liberty bonds were quoted here today as follows: 3½'s, 101.10; first 4½'s, 97.06; second 4¼'s, 97.04; third 4¼'s, 98; fourth 4¼'s, 97.11; new 4½'s, 98.26; victory 4¾'s, 100.01.

Stock Earns Less.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Atchison for 1922 earned $12.40 on common stock against $14.69 a share in 1921.—Lamson.

Steel Corporation Report.

NEW YORK, April 25.—U. S. steel corporation first quarter net $24,780,069 or at an annual rate of $8.90 on the common stock. The statement was better than expected showing a surplus after all charges and dividends.—Lamson.

Stock Market Opinions.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: A rally would seem to be in order.

Thomson McKinnon: Advances should be met with selling orders.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Neither news developments nor price movements on the New York stock exchange furnished any encouragement today to the school of speculative thought which holds that stock values have started on a downward swing in anticipation of drastic curtailment of the business expansion in progress for the last eighteen months.

Possibly the most important indication of the cumulative character of the spring revival was the fact that United States Steel corporation not only showed a surplus from the first three months of this year after a string of quarterly deficits prevailing since 1921, but in March actually earned an annual rate of $15 a share for its common stock. The market closed higher.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Prices were stimulated in the early dealings by a new high for Cuban raw sugar and by the surplus of $5,000,000 after dividend reports by United States Steel for the first quarter. This was the first time in two years that the corporation covered all expenses. Experienced traders argued that it would not be true to Wall street tradition if Steel common started on a permanent bull campaign on the prospects of the quarterly reports. For some time to come.

Opening prices: Pan-American "B" 65¾, up 1¾; U. S. Steel 105⅞, up 1; Bethlehem Steel 56⅝, up 1; American Can 59, Pan-American 74, up ¼; Baldwin 122⅜, off ⅛; Studebaker 55⅝, up ⅛; Railway and ocean 24⅜, up ⅛; California Petroleum 36, up ⅛; Sinclair 12⅞, off ⅛; Standard Oil of California 53¼, off ⅛; Cuban Cane Sugar, preferred 62⅜, up ⅛.

Trading was in small dull volume in the second hour falling to the lowest rate in recent weeks.

MRS. EVELYN RICE DEAD

Lincoln Woman Dies Suddenly at Home of Son in Nebraska City.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., April 25.—Mrs. Evelyn Rice, widow of Nathaniel Rice of Lincoln, who was visiting her son, H. O. Rice, of this place, died suddenly this morning while lying down for a short rest, after having been around the house in her usual health and not complaining of feeling badly. She was seventy years old and had lived here for many years previous to 1918, when she moved to Lincoln.

BAR PARTY AT LINCOLN.

The Lancaster bar association will hold its next monthly meeting at the Lincoln hotel instead of at the usual place, the occasion being ladies' night. Officers will also be elected. This is to be ethe last meeting until fall and will be held May 4.

MEN AND THINGS

I wonder how much of harm has been done by the preaching of the old doctrine wound about the world, the flesh and the devil. That taught us that it is a sin to love the good things of life, adornments, food, fine houses and the like. It was bottomed on the idea that these were all allurements of the devil handed over to him for use in testing whether we had any moral calibre. It was, in fact an assertion of an absurdity, that to be natural is to be bad. Its effect was to make hypocrites of many who swung between desire and fear, and induced a bravado in those that defied the conventional idea of morality that made it impossible for them to walk with the others and made them enemies of the church.

One of the big publishing houses is advertising a book of synonyms that it says will aid greatly in bringing about rhetorical perspicuity! Just as soon as we can get strength enough to reach out for our dictionary we will find out just what that means. We suppose that the man who wrote it is trying to say that if you will read his book you will be able to speak more clearly, but being smart enough to get out a book of synonyms why does he not use the simpler ones instead of dipping into the highbrow section for a means of getting across his ideas?

Men who write much must, of necessity, get a better understanding of the shades of differences between words closely allied in meaning, if they wish to avoid being misunderstood than those whose expression of ideas and opinions is confined to word of mouth communication, if only because of the more enduring quality of the printed word and the certainty of not being always able to stand by the reader and smooth out his perplexities. Yet, unless the man who reads or hears you has the same understanding of these shades of meaning, where do we get? Ease of communication is possible only where both patronize the same dictionary or book of synonyms.

The community chest has so many excellent features to commend it that it is difficult to conceive of any considerable opposition to the permanent adoption of the basic plan. It is true that in operation it deprives a contributor of specifically guiding his gifts to the precise charities or work that he desires to help most, but in that it does not differ much from the results of our other expenditures, taxes, church contributions and the like. The impossibility of accompanying each dollar to a ticketed designation robs this objection of any special importance. We have the assurance of men and women of discretion, judgment and experience that all of it is spent in the support of good causes.

If you get too serious about things and begin to wonder if the world is headed for the rocks because people, generally speaking, are careless and pursue pleasure with more zeal than they display towards anything else, and less moral responsibility appears to rest on the shoulders of the race than ever before, turn back thru some of the books you will find in the libraries and you will find all your fears reflected there by other equally earnest people. Henry Watterson told a reporter once, when asked what this life was all about, that it was a case of where one should do the best he can and do not crowd the other fellow too hard. Maybe if we could get everybody to act on this philosophy we would have no qualms for our progeny's future.

If it were not for what the people who think more of Florida than they do of California say we would be employing our energies in getting a law passed—that, you will notice, is how we solve all problems—to prevent California from advertising her advantages because of the effect it has on minds heretofore centered on heaven. A Florida devotee said the other day that he would like to go to California if it were not for the climate out there. Two state senators discussing a bill the other day said each had daughters in California schools, and about every other family is represented there. If we are to keep Nebraskans in Nebraska, ought we not to begin an organized knocking on California? When I get so old that I can't find pleasure in work I shall want to go to California to do my loafing, but not before.

Umbrellas were introduced from Asiatic countries, where they are of great antiquity, and are used as protectors from the sun's rays, rather than from rain. They were brought to England from Italy in the early part of the eighteenth century and later came into general use, being employed by ladies, but scorned by men as effeminate, until Jonas Hanway, an eccentric traveler, demonstrated their utility as a protection from rain. They soon came into universal use and the industry was introduced into the United States about 1800, but did not assume importance until 1865.—Boston Globe.

CANADIAN RIVERS

(By Walter Wellman)

The little girl had printed six words on the blackboard. She can take one letter from the first word, one from the second, one from the third, etc., and have the name of a river in Canada. She can repeat this three times and have two more Canadian rivers. All three of these rivers empty into Hudson bay. Can you make them out?

BRAIN TESTS

By Sam Loyd.

5 Minutes to Answer This.

The carpenter who constructed a sheepfold for Miss Bo-Peep discovered that he could save two of the posts to which the uniform fence rails were affixed by making the fold square instead of oblong. "Either way would hold the same number of sheep," said the mechanic, "and every sheep would have a post to tie to."

Now, if Miss Bo-Peep's flock contained less than thirty-six head, then how many sheep did she have?

Answer to Yesterday's.

Square the number—47 times 47 equals 2,209. This separate into two numbers—one a unit greater than the other. Answer, 47; 1,104, 1,105. Thus 2,256 rails inclosed the triangle.
